MOTORBOAT DROWN; REPORT 100 RESCUED

Tail Of Florida Hurricane Sweeps Atlantic Coast; Threatened By New Storm; Report Heavy Damage.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—A small motorboat containing three men and two women today was reported missing off the Jersey coast after the roaring mid-summer gale which lashed the seaboard from Chesapeake Bay to Sandy Hook.

The party left Island Beach, near Toms River, shortly before the storm broke, about midnight Saturday. Nothing has been heard of the craft, though marine men at Island Beach expressed confidence that the party found shelter somewhere along shore.

The storm striking inland in places but skirting New York, left one dead, and coast guardsmen reporting approximately one hundred rescues.

George Hopman, Jersey City fireman, was killed by a blown-down electric wire as he was stepping into a cab in front of his home.

The gale was the tail end of the tropical hurricane which swept Florida earlier in the week.

The mid-Atlantic coast is threatened with a new-born hurricane today. It was reported from Little Cayman Island in the West Indies, gathering in force and

OLYMPIC ATHLETES ON RETURNING SHIP FLUSH WITH HONORS

Hollanders Gather To Bid Farewell To Winners

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 13.—With several hundred Hollanders gathered on the quay to bid farewell to the Olympic victors, the U. S. S. President Roosevelt sailed out of Amsterdam harbor at 12:30 today. The American Olympic team, headed by the British Olympic team, will leave for Stockholm on their homeward-bound ship.

With most of the athletes who contested in the Olympic games on their way home, this city settled down to normal life today. Most of the Americans had already departed, some having gone to London to take part in the dual meet with the British Olympic team. From London the Americans go to Stockholm on their homeward-bound ship.

The Olympiad officially came to a close yesterday. Queen Wilhelmina attended the closing session and received a tremendous ovation. The equestrian competitions were among the final events of the program, Holland and Poland being tied for first place.

The last event was obstacle jumping, Spain getting first. The American contestants in this event were eliminated after the first round. Prize winners of all nations lined up on the field at the end of the day's program to receive their honors. The American contingent consisted of thirty-five persons, twelve of them women. The United States got twenty-two first prizes.

The majority of the national delegations were satisfied since thirty-one nations were represented in the prize list. The United States carried away more first prizes than the next two nations combined. These nations were Germany with eleven firsts and Finland with eight.

YOUTHS CAUGHT IN ROADSIDE SALOON

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 13.—Three men and one woman were to answer charges of violating the national prohibition act here today in federal court, following their arrest last Saturday night at a roadside saloon near the fashionable Ottawa Hills residence district. Federal agents, led by William A. Apleman, procured approximately 3,000 bottles of beer, several hundred gallons of beer mash, and a quantity of whiskey and gin.

According to the officers the cabaret was equipped with a complete bar and tables on two floors. Most of the guests at the time of the raid were said to be youths of about 18 years.

Those arrested gave the names of Manuel Broadway, 36, said to be the cabaret owner; Harold Coker, 23, said to be the bartender; Henry Gelsley, 22, and Hazel Walther, 24, all of Toledo.

STATE CANDIDATES WIND UP CAMPAIGNS AS ELECTION NEARS

Begg, Cooper, Turner Fight Attracts Attention

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 13.—"The most effective guaranty of the election of worthy officials is the nomination of proper candidates by each of the political parties," declared Governor Vic Donahey today in a proclamation urging all Ohio voters to cast their ballots at the primary elections to be held throughout the Buckeye state tomorrow.

"If each party nominates wisely, the government will be conducted faithfully, regardless of the result of the subsequent general election," Donahey's proclamation continued.

"The state is, and many of its counties are, fortunate in being fairly equally divided in the numerical strength of the two major political parties," the governor said.

"The result is that it is relatively easy to turn the rascals out if the party in power in state or local subdivision becomes wasteful, corrupt or otherwise derelict. By the same token, it is doubly easy to re-elect faithful servants with votes of confidence. Such a condition always has on public officials an influence conducive to clean, fair, honest and efficient government."

Candidates seeking the nomination to be made at tomorrow's primaries for state, congressional, legislative, judicial, and county offices as well as for various local positions were putting the finishing touches to their respective campaigns today.

Major public interest apparently centered in the contest between Congressman James T. Begg, Sandusky; Myers V. Cooper, Cincinnati; and Attorney General Edward C. Turner, Columbus, for the Republican nomination for governor. Begg and Turner are scheduled to make their closing campaign speeches tonight at Toledo while Cooper is to radio-cast an address tonight from Cincinnati over WLW's wavelength.

Interest in the contest for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination was heightened by an attack on the part of supporters of Bloomer, Director of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League, who were asked to immediately annul the League's endorsement of Davey for governor on the ground that Davey had endorsed Governor Al Smith for president. Bloom's candidacy for the Democratic nomination for governor also has been the subject of the League's approval. Officials of the League replied that if any action is taken at all relative to Davey's quest for the governorship it would not occur prior to tomorrow's primary election.

Considerable interest has attached to the race between U. S. Senator Cyrus Locher, Cleveland, and Attorney Graham Hunt, Cincinnati, for the Democratic nomination for the short term in the U. S. Senate. Locher, although classified as dry, endorsed Al Smith for president. Hunt favored modification of the Volstead act, it was announced.

There are sixty-three candidates for positions on the Democratic and Republican state ticket. These candidates seek the nominations for governor, lieutenant governor, U. S. senator, secretary of state, treasurer, auditor, attorney general, and judge of the Ohio Supreme Court. There will be two nominations for U. S. Senator by each political party and two for state supreme judge.

Nominations also will be made for congress, state senate, house of representatives, appellate court judge, common pleas and probate court judges, clerk of common pleas courts, sheriffs, county commissioners, county treasurers, surveyors, coroners, and county prosecutors and various other local positions.

MANILA, Aug. 13.—Manuel Quezon, president of the senate of the insular government, arrived in Hong Kong today and suffered a relapse.

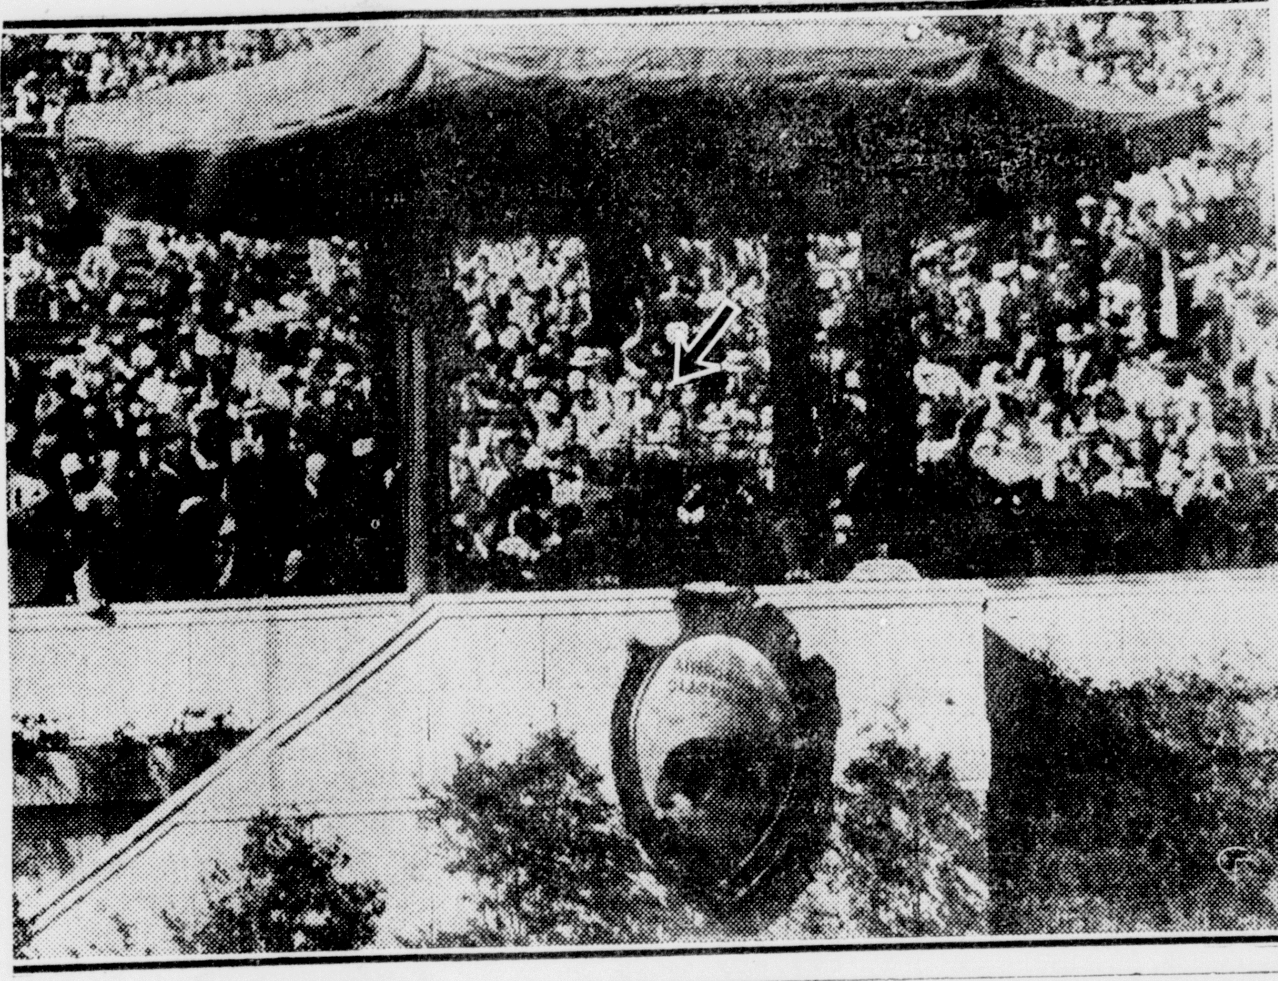

President Quezon was immediately confined to his bed by physicians. Quezon hoped, however, to continue his journey.

He predicted the granting of independence to the Philippine Islands by the United States if Governor Alfred E. Smith were elected president.

FOUR KILLED WHEN PLANE HITS CROWD

BERLIN, Aug. 13.—Three men and one woman were killed and several others injured today when an exhibition flyer named Gesper lost control of his airplane and crashed into a crowd of spectators at the Aachen flying field. Motor trouble is said to have been the cause of the accident. Gesper was only slightly hurt.

Betrothed Ex-Heavy King Slips Back To Gotham Seeking Job.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Gene Tunney, trying desperately to achieve the status of a "private citizen" since the announcement of his engagement to Polly Lauder, $50,000 heiress, was back in New York today from his fiancée's home. The ex-heavyweight champion refused to be seen.

With his renunciation of the prize ring crown, "Gentleman Gene" was staying to snap off the bright light of publicity that brought him from the ranks to the top of his chosen profession, and command in full the title the fight fans had bestowed upon him.

And so like thousands of other men in New York today, Mr. James J. Tunney "went downtown." He arrived early this morning from Bar Harbor. He announced brusquely to his associates that he "was going downtown," that he "wouldn't be back until late," and disappeared.

There were rumors that Tunney today was "looking for a job" and that this was the explanation of the trip downtown. No one connected with the former Tunney entourage could or would say.

No arrangements for a statement had been made today and Tunney seemingly wished to stick to his avowal on St. John's Island that he is through with statements to the press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Police today were seeking to determine the cause of the death of Hazel Deyo Batchelor, 38, widely known writer of sex novels and other fiction, who was found dead in her Greenwich Village apartment.

The body of the woman, who was said to have been in ill health for some time, was found in kneeling posture beside her bed as if she had died while in prayer.

STRATON CHURCH IS BARRED TO DEBATE; WAS "ONLY JOKING"

Pastor Offers To Meet Governor In Public Hall

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Dr. John Roach Straton in a new statement on his proposed debate with Governor Al Smith over the statement by the pastor that Governor Smith was "the deadliest foe of moral progress and political wisdom in America today" bars the use of Calvary Baptist Church, of which Dr. Straton is the pastor, as the place of meeting.

Previously Dr. Straton had accepted the challenge of the governor and said he would repeat the charge and allow the governor to answer him in the pulpit of Calvary Church provided the debate could be repeated in St. Patrick's Cathedral, at the same time he suggested that a larger auditorium, such as Madison Square Garden be obtained for the discussion in order to accommodate the large crowd that would be attracted.

In Dr. Straton's latest statement he says that his former acceptance naming his own church and St. Patrick's Cathedral, was made in a "jocular vein" and that under no circumstances could he permit his own church to be used for a purely political discussion.

Dr. Straton says he stands ready to meet Governor Smith at any other place and at any time except on the "Lord's Day." It also is understood that the trustees of Calvary Church have refused to permit the debate in the church.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 13.—Heavy damage by the storm was done to crops and small boats on the eastern shore of Maryland, according to word reaching here today.

At Ocean City the waves broke over the boardwalk and the spray entered the second floor of the beach hotel.

The temperature dropped to a record low level in Baltimore. Streets and basements were flooded here.

When the lights went out last night at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Dr. William Chase performed an operation by the aid of two flash lights held by a nurse. The patient was reported doing nicely today.

RALEIGH, N. C., Aug. 13.—Efforts were being made today to estimate the damage wrought by the storm which swept North and South Carolina resulting in the deaths of five persons. Early estimates place the loss at approximately $1,000,000.

Three cotton mills in villages located near Spartanburg, S. C., suffered losses estimated at $200,000 due to the flood which followed the torrential rains.

BOAT IS WRECKED

ALGONIA, Mich., Aug. 13.—Miss America VI, Gar Wood's newest and most powerful speed boat, built to defend the Harmsworth trophy, was in ruins in the north channel of the St. Clair River today. The boat split to pieces while traveling at a speed Wood estimated to be the fastest any hydroplane had ever gone.

Wood was at the wheel. He was not injured. His mechanic, Orlun Johnson, was thrown against the exhaust pipes and badly cut.

The engines and a considerable part of the boat sank. The Miss America VI was launched Saturday and the accident occurred on her second trial run.

CAPITAL WASHED BY HEAVY RAINFALL; DAMAGE REPORTED

Crops And Shipping Suffer From Storm Along Coast

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Washington heaved a sigh of relief, as for the first time since Friday, the sun broke through the clouds today.

All local records for rainfall have been broken in the last three days. Nearly nine inches of rain fell. The storm, whipped by a sharp wind that caused the temperature to fall to almost winter levels, was an aftermath of the Florida hurricane.

Communication was crippled, crops leveled and large areas of the city and nearby Maryland and Virginia were flooded, in some places to a depth of six and seven feet.

No casualties have been reported.

Five of the main approaches to the city were blocked and scores of motorists who ventured forth Saturday in quest of a weekend holiday were still stranded along the roads.

Nineteen members of the sodality union who attended a church picnic at Brynawton, Md., were marooned on a bus from seven o'clock Saturday night to nine a. m., Sunday. Washington firemen were finally sent to their rescue.

HOOVER COMMITTED AGAINST LIQUOR IN ACCEPTANCE SPEECH

Candidate Makes Clear Stand On Wet-Dry Question

By William K. Hutchinson
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

STANFORD UNIVERSITY,
Cal., Aug. 13.—Herbert Hoover, dry; Alfred E. Smith, wet!

For the first time since its adoption eight years ago, prohibition today became a major issue in a presidential election with Herbert Hoover, the Republican nominee, definitely committed to the outlawry of intoxicating liquors. The issue will be joined ten days hence when Governor Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic nominee, declares himself for liberalization of the Volstead act.

Hoover today stood on record as opposed to repeal of the eighteenth amendment, as pledged to efficient enforcement of the Volstead act, as opposed to nullification of the eighteenth amendment through liberalization of the Volstead act and as pledged to the correction of all abuses of the prohibition statutes.

In drafting this stand on prohibition for his acceptance speech, International News Service learned on the highest authority. Hoover believed he was "burning all his bridges behind him" so far as prohibition is concerned. The Republican nominee believed he had definitely committed himself to the dry side of the prohibition question. That, at least, was his purpose, according to unimpeachable authority.

The nominee, however, did not and does not desire to battle out the campaign on the prohibition issue. He looks upon prohibition

SAY BLACKMER PLOT FOILED

PARIS, Aug. 13.—A sensational report that an attempt was made to "kidnap" Henry M. Blackmer, rich American oil magnate and missing Teapot Dome witness, was circulated here today.

The foreign office at the present time has under consideration a request from Washington for the extradition of Blackmer, who is wanted to answer a charge of perjury in connection with his income tax statements in Colorado.

According to the report Blackmer was invited to dine on a yacht flying the United States flag. At the last moment while he was stepping into a launch to go to the yacht, one of his two bodyguards warned him that there might be a plot and prevented him from boarding the boat.

According to the newspaper Presse, the yacht was owned by enemies of Blackmer who intended to carry him to the United States once he was on board.

BANDITS ROB SAME CLERK FOURTH TIME

CLEVELAND, Aug. 13.—Hyman Bogart, young clerk at a United Cigar store at Euclid Avenue and E. 6th Street, one of the city's busiest corners, was reported badly unnerved today following a hold-up at the store last night. It was the fourth time he has been held up in the last three months.

After police arrived at Bogart's home, he said, "I can't stand it. The first three times I bit my lip and held myself together, but I can't go on any longer."

The two bandits who held the store up last night forced Bogart to lie on his back on the floor and open the safe. They then forced him into the basement, escaping with the day's cash receipts.

MOTHER OF MRS. WALKER IMPROVES

CLINTON, Iowa, Aug. 13.—Mrs. Etta Traverser Allen, mother-in-law of Mayor James J. Walker of New York, who underwent an operation here yesterday for anemia, was recovering today according to word from the hospital. She will be able to return to New York in ten days, it was said.

Her nephew, Paul Cromer, gave twelve ounces of his blood for transfusion. Mrs. Allen has been ill for some time and came to the home of her sister, Mrs. Will Hill, at Lowmore, early in the summer with the hope the climate would benefit her.

Mrs. Walker is with her mother and expects to return with her to New York.

ALLEGED OBSCENE BOOKS BARRED FROM U. S.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Again the public morals have been protected.

The board of literary censorship of the U. S. Customs Service got into action today and excluded a set of forty-three books—termed "merchandise"—that were held to be "filled with obscenity of the rottenest and vilest character."

The decision was backed up by the customs court.

The titles of some of the books couldn't even be printed outside of the court record, but among the

"mild" ones that ran afoul of the customs literary Ellis Island were: "The Ethnology of the Sixth Sense," "The Basis of Passion Psychology," "Crossways of Sex," "The Strangest Voluptuousness," "Aphrodite."

"The plaintiff states in his brief that these books are of undoubted merit and literary value," said the customs decision.

"If it could be argued that the books abounding in obscenity, filth and rotteness are books of undoubted merit and literary value, then all these are masterpieces. If merchandise of this character is to be admitted into the United States then section 305 of the tariff act of 1922 should be erased from the statute books."

Section 305 provides for the barring of books or other works found to be obscene. The customs service held that books which are offensive to chastity, decency, or decency, expressing or presenting to the mind or view something that is indecent, lascivious, or filthy, are to be expressed, are obscene.

POLICE CHECK THREE ATTEMPTS BY PRISONER TO HANG HIMSELF

John Hartley, 48, Chillicothe, O., attempted suicide three times within forty-five minutes after being lodged in a cell at Police Headquarters for intoxication late Sunday afternoon. Police prevented each attempt.

Hartley was found in a ditch at the edge of the corporation line on E. Main St., at 5:30 p. m. Sunday by Patrolman Fred Jones.

Fifteen minutes after being locked up in a cell, Jones discovered Hartley had removed one of two shirts he was wearing, tied it around his neck and was trying to strangle himself. The officer took the shirt away from him.

About 6 o'clock as Patrolman Charles Thompson came on duty, a colored prisoner in an adjoining cell shouted that Hartley was repeating the experiment. Hartley had removed his other shirt and knotted it around his neck. Officers took the shirt and his suspenders away.

Ten minutes later the same prisoner sang out that "it won't be long now." Jones rushed in the cell room again and found Hartley had tied his underwear around his neck, fastened the sleeves of the garment to the bars of the cell, and was hanging freely. Police found him so securely tied up that they had to cut him down. This time they took all of his clothing away and Hartley spent the night "au naturel."

Only slightly the worse for the experience, Hartley was arraigned for intoxication before Mayor John W. Prugh Monday morning. He was fined $10 and costs when he pleaded guilty, but Mayor Prugh suspended the assessment and ordered him to leave the city.

FORMER PROFESSOR AT ANTIOCH PROBES LABOR CONDITIONS

It is a far cry from the chair of a college professor to the bench of a production worker in an industrial plant, employed in common labor with thousands of other workmen, but that has been the unique experience of Stanley B. Mathewson, 260 S. Broadmoor Blvd., Springfield, former director of personnel administration at Antioch College, Yellow Springs.

Retained by the National Social Science Research Council to make a study of labor in industrial plants, Professor Mathewson is purposely working as a shop hand in Springfield in the interest of science. He wants to get a "slant" of the average non-union production worker in the shops of the United States.

He needed first-hand information in order to complete a task begun January 1, 1928 when he resigned the directorship of personnel administration at Antioch after serving six years in that capacity.

A comprehensive report on production records of labor in American industries, which is designed to throw new light on the problem of mass production, is being prepared by Prof. Mathewson for the National Council.

The new work is financed by the National Council, under a grant of the Laura Spellman Rockefeller Foundation and is under the supervision of Antioch College and the Personal Research Federation of New York City.

The purpose of the research and investigation is two-fold.

In the first place, Antioch College students obtain their education under a co-operative system by which they work part time and attend school part time. It is planned to get first hand information on some of the problems that the students encounter in their work on co-operative jobs, Mr. Mathewson says.

The other purpose is to make a scientific investigation of the working habits of non-union labor.

ELECT SPARKS AS SURVEYOR

Harry Sparks, candidate for the Republican nomination for county surveyor, offers his name to the electorate of Greene County on the basis of a life-long residence in this county and a varied experience in his profession.

Born and reared in Xenia, Mr. Sparks prepared himself for his chosen profession by attending the Xenia public schools, and then graduating from a qualified college of civil engineering.

His professional career has included positions that guaranteed him valuable experience in the field of engineering. He has served as civil engineer for both private and public enterprises, has been city engineer of Xenia, and city engineer of Lansing, Mich. His records in both of these positions are open to public inspection and will show him to have given an honest, fair, intelligent and capable administration of his duties. His experience also in the business and manufacturing worlds, has helped to season him in the duties of administration of the office of county surveyor, which adds to his qualifications for that office.

Mr. Sparks has served as city commissioner of Xenia but has never held an elective office in the county. He is a life-long Republican and is conducting his campaign on the basis of merit for the office, and without resort to mud-slinging or similar tactics.

Because of a public-spirited effort to assist the citizens of his home town in providing a community auditorium in Shawnee Park, Mr. Sparks has been unable to give much time to his campaign. After drawing plans for the community building free of charge, Mr. Sparks volunteered to supervise construction of the building on the same basis, with the result that he has been spending his time and efforts in a project of public value without remuneration and at personal sacrifice. The fact that he has been unable to call on the voters personally has been a keen disappointment to him.

A vote for Harry Sparks Tuesday will be a vote for honest administration, integrity in office and capable engineering services. With the many projects facing this office, the county owes it to itself to acquire the best talent possible. A vote for Mr. Sparks will be in the best interests of the county and your support at the primary will be greatly appreciated.

as a "great moral experiment," as he has publicly stated, and feels it should be decided on a non-partisan basis and not as a part of any political campaign. The Republican nominee does not look upon the Volstead act as "perfect." He feels there should be an impartial investigation of prohibition, its problems and abuses, methods of enforcement and means of correcting abuses. When the "facts" are learned, he is ready to have a new enforcement act placed on the statute books which will carry out the purpose of the eighteenth amendment—namely, the prohibition of the sale, manufacture or transportation of intoxicating liquors.

Hoover's position can be summarized in these words: "If the Volstead act is not workable, we should have an investigation to learn how we can make it a success."

Hoover, in his speech Saturday, believed he cleared up all misunderstanding about his position on prohibition. He was said to feel there is no need of further discussion of the question by him. If he does speak on the subject again during the campaign, it will be only because the public has become confused about it and in that event, Hoover will declare himself dry as to leave no doubt in any man's mind.

There was considerable turmoil here over the week end about Hoover's prohibition stand, due to the action of one of his advisers in giving out an unauthorized "wet" interpretation of his speech. This self-appointed "spokesman" said Hoover really stood for liberalization of the Volstead act, much like Governor Smith, and had tried to so assert himself in the speech. When Hoover learned of this interpretation word was passed out from his headquarters that the "spokesman" had been permanently silenced.

Hoover's attitude toward prohibition can be understood if his career is studied. He was raised a Quaker and as a child was taught in that faith's rigid creed that drinking was a physical blight and moral sin. As a youth, in mining camps, he saw the vicious side of drunkenness and the saloon evil. He lost some of his moral scruples against intoxicating liquors while traveling about the world, but he welcomed the eighteenth amendment.

He termed it a "noble" social experiment. Since its adoption he carefully avoided homes where liquor was served at the table in defiance of the law. His closest social friends in Washington are known as "teetotalers." He is a passionate defender of the constitution, and as such has no respect for men who defy any portion of it.

Hoover will rest here until Thursday night, when he begins his return trip to Washington. He will spend Friday in Los Angeles, Monday in Topeka, visiting Senator Curtis, three days in Iowa and reach Washington, about August 26.

ARREST SLAYER

CLEVELAND, Aug. 13. —Police here early today arrested a man giving his name as Thomas DeMalo in connection with the killing last night of Alessandro Zucolo, 27, who was shot during a party at a west side home. The shooting occurred, according to spectators, during an argument between the victim and another man over who should dance with a young woman. DeMalo, arrested at his home later, has confessed, according to police.

VOTE FOR LACKEY

For Commissioner
Next Tuesday, Aug. 14th

Now Serving First Term

We are too busy with official work to canvass the county or make a house to house call.

The present Board has made and repaired more roads and streets than has ever been done in one term of the County Board. Drainage has been our first work on all streets and roads in each town in the county. We have made or assisted in constructing more new streets. The roads are in better condition than ever before, with less expense to the county, using in the last two years only one-half of the two mill levy.

We were the first to suggest rest rooms and comfort stations for the public in the Court House. How does the Court House lawn look to you? More people out of the mud than ever before.

The present Board is very logically situated. Mr. Beam, in the south west part of the county, Mr. Eavey at Xenia and Lackey in Ross Township.

The Board has always been very harmonious in all county work and deliberations and plans. We are better prepared to serve the county successfully than four years ago.

We are only asking the customary second term and will appreciate your support.

Our present board is different in that they do not use tobacco in any form or cuss or swear.

It's too hot for that if we were so inclined.

Let's keep it that way by the usual X next Tuesday.

Respectfully your Servant,
J. H. Lackey.

RECORD PRIMARY VOTE HERE ON TUESDAY BELIEVED CERTAIN

Greene County voters will go to the polls Tuesday to select Republican and Democratic candidates for county offices and to ballot on candidates of both parties for state and district offices.

Polling places in both the city and rural districts will be open from 6:30 a. m. to 6:30 p. m. Officials of the Board of Elections predict an unusually heavy vote at the primary and express the opinion that the number of ballots cast Tuesday in Xenia and Greene County may quite possibly establish a local record for a primary election.

R. E. Dunkel, clerk of the election board, announced that 105 absent voter's ballots had been cast when the time expired Saturday at midnight. This in itself is believed to have set a new record for absentee voting in a primary election.

Efforts are being made to stimulate voting and election board officials urge that all citizens of age go to the polls.

Chief interest in the local primary election centers in the Republican factional fight for control of the party central committee and nomination for several county offices for which there are contests.

The anti-Marshall group is seeking to retain party control in Greene County. This faction has dominated the party for the last year after wresting control from the Marshall-Gowdy faction, which held sway for a number of years.

Factional leaders are also centering attention upon several county offices, including the positions of prosecuting attorney and probate judge, both of which are held by Marshall-Gowdy men.

Judge S. C. Wright is seeking re-nomination for the office.

Miss Mildred Smithers, Louisville, and Miss Charlotte Knott, Portsmouth, O., were out-of-town guests, when Miss Virginia Heathman entertained friends for three tables of bridge, Saturday evening. A dainty luncheon was served by Miss Heathman.

Two small colored boys, caught while attempting to break into Babb's hardware store, 16 S. Detroit St., early Sunday night, were arrested by Patrolman Charles Thompson and Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, and turned over to Juvenile Court Monday.

The youngsters gave their names as Thurman Hudson, 13, 1611 E. Church St., and David Goings, 14, 26 Taylor St. The boys shattered a rear window and a man who heard the crash of broken glass notified police, who captured the pair in an alley. They admitted breaking the glass but had not yet entered the building.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

SOUL FEAR—The wicked flee when no man pursueth; but the righteous are bold as a lion.—Prov. 28:1.

REVOLUTION IN MEN'S DRESS

A correspondent asks why men shouldn't issue a declaration of independence in the matter of dress. Women, he says, have long since adopted common sense, often excessively common, sartorial principles. What they wear these hot days is literally next to nothing, while the men can't even remove their coats in a hotel dining room without causing arched eyebrows and indignant stares.

As a remedy, this correspondent suggests male garb consisting of short pants, light socks and a shirt. Thus, coats and vests are eliminated at one fell stroke and tradition collapses with a bang.

We hate to oppose so alluring a suggestion. But our correspondent has neglected one extremely important, though somewhat incidental, consideration. That is the question of pockets.

It is to be presumed that the short pants recommended would have five pockets—one to the portside, one to the starboard, one fore and two abaft. These would take care of a handkerchief, small change, a roll of bills, a penknife, a watch and a keyring.

In the shirt, there would be another receptacle for cigarettes and matches. But a pipe smoker would be out of luck, and what in the world could a fellow do with his fountain pen, his pencil, his automobile registration card and his current mail?

The coat provides the only solution. Far from being a stickler for some finical code of etiquette, we simply view this issue from the utilitarian point of view. And until our radical correspondent proposes an adequate substitute for pockets, we shall continue, sartorially speaking, to be a reactionary defender of things as they are.

ANOTHER INDUSTRIAL REVOLUTION

The possibility that Great Britain is on the verge of another great industrial revolution, similar to that which heralded the approach of the industrial age in the eighteenth century, is pointed out by the American Section of the International Chamber of Commerce in a report from Paris as one of the developments which is attracting the attention of continental observers.

"The 'coming industrial revolution in Great Britain,'" the report states, "is but one of the significant phrases used by these observers, who profess to see a new era of great industrial consolidations under the coming protection of a higher tariff which may ultimately lead to a Pan-Britannic Customs Union, and a new orientation of British trade and British trade policies. The three outstanding figures in this movement, as it is observed on the continent, are Sir Alfred Mond, who is successfully building up a vigorous Pan-Britannic customs movement; Sir Arthur Balfour, who is organizing the statistical survey of British industry on which to base plans for a business revival; and Winston Churchill, who, in his recent budget address, outlined a series of reforms destined to relieve industries oppressed by an antique taxation system and to stimulate them by further tariff and financial concessions."

MYTHS AND NIGHTMARES

A business predictor says we are going to see renewed prosperity and he forecasts the disappearance of the presidential year nightmare. The tradition that a presidential election year is a bad year for business may not be serious enough to be called a nightmare, but it surely should be laid forever among the discarded myths of the republic. Now that both political parties are in practical agreement on the fundamentals of government and policy, nothing terrible is going to happen to the United States of America no matter who is elected president. If we recognize that obvious fact we can find no cause for any depression of business this year.

STOP THIS

There must be no rolling pin championship in America. It is a dangerous idea. The Boston Post prints the picture of a Washington woman who claims the record as a rolling pin thrower with a toss of 56 feet and three inches. Comes now a Massachusetts woman who says she can throw a rolling pin without handles, weighing two pounds, 57 feet underhand and 50 feet overhand. With a handle in one end she says she can throw it 65 feet underhand and 80 feet overhand. Here is a situation that men must do something about. If necessary they must invoke the aid of state legislatures or the federal government in a desperate attempt to declare rolling pin practice unconstitutional. Suppose women should add accuracy to distance.

HANGING TOO LATE

Hanging the criminal or burning him up in the electric chair comes too late to do the individual who was wronged by the crime much good. It is true there is too much sloppy pity wasted on morons and the vicious when they fail to control their impulses and habits and enter on a career of crime. There is doubtless plenty of humanitarianism and to spare in prisons. The fact is, however, that a much wiser generation that will come after us—we hope—will spend more time and more brains studying crime and its causes and less time on methods of punishment. Whether the criminal is locked up for life or snapped out at the end of a rope is a more incident in current history. But it is extremely important that we should some day arrive at and tabulate the principal causes of crime and take steps to prevent the breeding of morons, insane persons, feeble-minded, and all those incapables who drift along the borderland of human intelligence.

FEARS AND TEARS

In the study of crime and criminals we should do away with fears and tears. The question must be faced in the calm, cold, analytical manner of the true scientist. Between the sob sisters and their equally sobby brothers who think a jail should be a summer hotel and criminals should be fed on tea, cake, and champagne, and their hard-headed compatriots who believe that a chicken thief ought to be electrocuted, there must be some middle ground of common sense.

The Diary

of a

New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK.—I nominate for the title of heroine, Miss Anita Tully, dramatic soprano. Miss Tully is starring in the Wagnerian music festival in New York after six years of study under American not European instructors. And she obtained the money for her instruction by working in that dreaded place, the New York Morgue.

Twelve hours a day, first as a secretary, and later as a pathological technician, she worked among the unclaimed dead in order to be able to cultivate her voice evenings and Sundays.

The Morgue is not in any of the sight-seeing itineraries, and few persons ever visit it except on business or upon a sad mission, but to me it is one of the city's most interesting places. No one can visit it regularly without becoming something of a philosopher.

I have a tip for those who go in for collecting first editions of the great and the near great. The files of the Engineering and Mining Journal contain more than a score of original contributions, on a variety of subjects, by Herbert Hoover. The Republican presidential candidate and his wife are the joint authors of a book the translation from the Latin of an ancient volume on mining processes.

Speaking of candidates, a slip of the tongue which made Governor Al Smith say facilitate when he meant facilitate caused the movie man reel in which he made his debut as a film actor to be junked. The error was not discovered until the picture was ready to be released.

There are lots of us who miff our words when we get on our feet to speak. If an experienced spellbinder like Candidate Smith does it, then the untrained speaker need not feel ruined when his tongue slips and he uses the wrong word.

Strange hobbies are to be found among the rich and the notable. There are, of course, collectors of stamps, old coins, collectors of furniture, rugs, books and jewelry. (Peggy Hopkins Joyce, for instance.) And there also are a number of men who devote themselves to collecting canes. There is a shop in Fulton street which caters to such collectors. It is run by a man who doesn't carry a cane himself!

Low-numbered New York auto license tags are an index to political distinction and cars bearing tags with a number under 200 can "get away with murder" with traffic cops. The low numbers invariably are issued to mayors, governors, senators, congressmen, and heavy contributors to party funds.

I was in a motor car with a low-numbered tag in Central park the other afternoon and I never disregarded several traffic conventions in his desire to get down town in a hurry. Soon a motorcycle cop was in pursuit. When, however, the cop got near enough to the car to see the license tag, he slowed down and dropped the chase.

Salmon or Tuna Fish Salad
Creamed Potatoes
Olives
Sliced Cucumbers
Quick Coffee Cake
Fresh Berries

ICED TEA

Suppose you have invited a guest or two for luncheon and the day turns out to be hot. You know your guest will expect a substantial meal with some hot food. This menu may be baked in the oven, but the oven will not have to be heated for more than an hour at most. The potatoes are boiled in their skins early and allowed to cool, then peeled, diced and creamed, then put into a buttered baking dish, covered with buttered crumbs and baked for 15 minutes in the oven.

Salmon Salad—Flake a can of salmon with silver or wood fork, add half a small chopped celery and a bit of onion if you like. Mix well with any favorite salad dressing, chill and serve on lettuce with slices of cucumber and lemon for garnish.

Quick Coffee Cake—Two cups flour, one-half teaspoon salt, three teaspoons baking powder, one egg three-fourths cup milk, three tablespoons melted shortening, flavoring. Mix dry ingredients together and break egg into the middle of the mixture. Add shortening and milk. Beat mixture and flavor with a little grated rind of lemon or a few drops of vanilla. To dough left in bowl add two tablespoons sugar, one tablespoon flour and some cinnamon; rub together with the fingers and sprinkle over the top. Dot with bits of butter. Bake in a flat pan in a hot oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) about twenty minutes.

Presto Cake—Melt one-fourth cup butter in measuring cup. Sift one cup sugar, a pinch of salt, one and one-half cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder together in mixing bowl. Drop whole egg into the cup that contains the melted shortening, fill up with milk, stir altogether in cup and pour into dry ingredients. Mix well and bake in loaf or layers. If you wish to frost it use a cup of confectioners sugar with a tablespoon of butter and enough milk or fruit juice to make it spread easily.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

"Nerves" are one of the most serious developments of our day—they are health destroyers and beauty destroyers, and there is no cure for them except your own will power.

The first part of the cure for nerves consists of the introduction of system into your life. The more systematically we can learn to formulate our lives, the easier order creeps in to calm the jagged nerves to peace and repose.

Women who live at the mercy of their nerves and their emotions, are controlled by a misdirected will, instead of a well-poised brain.

Try to learn control, but not through that very bad habit of "fussing" or the worse one of having on hand an eternal bit of knitting or sewing. It is quite true that a woman may find an anchor for patience in some employment for her fingers or her brain. But to have on hand a bit of work that keeps her fingers busy every spare moment, whether at lecture or concert, is making a terrific drain on her nerves, a drain that she simply cannot afford to hazard.

Incessant activity whether it be that which I have just described, or a mad, eternal rush for pleasure or success is one of the ways in which the modern woman is committing suicide.

No work is rest. You must not forget that. Reading spurs your brain. Walking utilizes physical energy. Sewing tires the eyes and fingers and mind alike. Mind you, I am not denying that when one part of your mind your body or your nerves has been worked to weariness, a good book, a brisk walk or a thrilling play may be the best possible way to balance the strain and help relax, but I am denying emphatically, that any of these may be classified as resting. You cannot do two things at one time and gain the full benefit from either one or the other.

Do not waste energy. If you are going to play, play hard. If you are going to work, work hard, and if you are resting, rest hard, your mind, your fingers and your thoughts.

Spare yourself the terrible tension of strained nerves by cultivating the habit of 10-minute relaxation periods.

The world we live in is rushed, bustling, noise and nerve racking. You must counteract the effects of the times by learning to relax, developing serenity and holding on to patience and self-control, even though the earth rocks under you. Impossible? Not in the least. I want you to believe me when I tell you that nerves are purely a state of mind, and therefore quite controllable.

Watch for the danger signals. Constant wakefulness is a certain symptom of fraying nerves. Do not overlook it. For every hour of lost sleep, remember that your physical resistance is lowered—you are doubly and triply a prey to any disease that comes along, and your brain is jangling the warning bell of overstrain.

Answers to Correspondents

A Few Questions

"Dear Doctor: I have a few questions to ask that I think are on the minds of other people. About chewing gum: Is it harmful? I have heard that it enlarges the lips. I chew a good deal of gum and I don't care to ruin my system or enlarge my lips! Will you also explain further regarding ozema? A friend of mine has halitosis every once in a while, and it doesn't come from his stomach or teeth so it must come from his throat or nose. Every once in a while a piece of cheesy looking, foul smelling matter is dislodged from his throat and comes into his mouth. If he rubs his Adam's apple, the same material is dislodged. This is very queer, isn't it? Is it ozema or not? Or what? Could you help us?"

"I was not long ago just at the stage where I was enough over-weight to be unsightly. You know, not exactly fat, but kind of greasy. I started counting my calories. There is all the difference in the world. I now look respectable. What a difference five little pounds make! I am 16, and am 5 feet 10 inches tall and weigh 145. Is that too much for a boy of my age and build? I think I am about right, now. Am I? Please answer, Your friend, C."

Yes, C, you are just about all right. The Baldwin-Wood tables give 140 pounds for good average weight for a boy of your height, but it is generally believed that it is better for growing boys and girls to be slightly over the average weight. The five pounds you reduced evidently were in excess of this.

Now about the gum: I don't believe it is harmful to chew it. I don't believe it will enlarge the lips. It may help make wrinkles when you are at the wrinkling age. I don't know whether any scientific work has been done to show whether it has any effect on the digestion, or not; probably it hasn't. Each stick of gum has about 5 calories of sugar in it, which would have to be counted if you chew many fresh sticks a day. Chewing gum is a bad habit, except in the privacy of your own room.

Ozema is a form of dry catarrh in which dry crusts form—much more than normal—which are very offensive in odor. This condition requires prolonged treatment by a specialist in the nose and throat. The application of some antiseptic ointment up the nose at night will lessen the formations. We have an article on colds and catarrh which goes into the subject more in detail. (The column rules for obtaining material we offer are to enclose two cents in coin with a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope for all articles except the reducing and gaining pamphlet, for which ten cents in coin in addition to the self-addressed, stamped envelope are necessary.)

About your friend's halitosis: It probably doesn't come from his "stomach" (by the way, C, this is spelled by the dictionaries stomach. Stupid, those dictionaries—it certainly sounds like stum, doesn't it?) It undoubtedly comes from the cheesy bits. He has what is known as cryptic tonsils. There

Kellygrams

By FRED C. KELLY

A friend who operates a chain of retail candy stores tells me that in the larger cities candy stores have three main buying waves—at 5:30 and 8:10 p. m., and shortly before midnight.

The buyers at 5:30 are mostly men buying candy for wives and youngsters as they start home for dinner. But why should there be a selling flurry at exactly ten minutes after eight? Because 8:30 has for many years been the conventional hour for calling on one's sweetheart, and in most cities the time required to go from downtown section to her home is about twenty minutes. Hence much candy to carry to sweethearts is bought at about 8:10 p. m.

Not much candy is sold in the average store after 11:30 p. m., but nevertheless compared with the number of pedestrians abroad at that hour, the number of sales is often higher than at any other time of the day. In other words, those who are on the street then are the very ones likely to go to a store and buy candy. For many of these are men who promised to be home much earlier and they find it advantageous to have candy as peace offerings for their wives.

Night Heron Goes to Bed at Dawn

"Well," said the cruel cannibal muttering to himself, but talking aloud so that we could hear him, "it is high time that I took myself off to the tall trees. It would never do for a Night Heron to be caught out in the daylight. I have altogether too many cousins of the day who might be glad to pick a scrap with me for being on their hunting grounds, and what a mess I should be in then! I couldn't see to jab out their eyes—I should only lose my own for my pains."

"Besides, I am getting sleepy—I do wish I could keep awake after daybreak, but I never can. I have eaten heartily and drunk my fill and had an interesting hunt for two strangers. However, I might have devoured if I had found them—what more could I wish?"

"For a Night Heron I have are dip pits in them in which food germs and cast-off epithelial cells of the tonsils, pack down and decompose. These packings are called cholesteatomatous masses. (Spring this on him.) Such tonsils may be sources of infection and may be diseased themselves, so he should consult a throat specialist. Until he does this he might massage them with the end of his toothbrush and try to free the crypts of their T. N. T.

I hope I have helped you with your problems. C. I'm glad you have a proper appreciation of looking fit, for that means keeping fit, mentally, morally and physically. Tomorrow: Answers to Mothers. EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column, in turn. Requests for articles must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed stamped envelope and two cents in coin for each article to cover cost of printing and handling. Behind the Scenes in

Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

NEW YORK—Two peas in a form of government was invented. pod are not so much alike—for even two peas do differ slightly from one another—as the headquarters of our two major political parties.

Republican headquarters occupies four floors in the Barr building in Washington. Democratic headquarters occupies a floor and a half in the General Motors building in New York. However, the acreage is about the same, for the General Motors building covers a full city block and the Barr building only a fraction of one.

It's estimated that the Democrats have 45 separate offices. I'd guess that this was a fair stand-off against the Republicans.

Considering how far apart Herbert Hoover and Al Smith are, as personalities, it does seem as if their respective groups of boosters ought to reflect this difference somewhat.

Forget it! Herb's crowd and Al's crowd swap jobs and go right on working. Herb's crew for Al and Al's bunch for Herb, and neither outfit would know it had changed sides, except from the looks of the office furniture—the Hoovers seem to have favored a more somber tone, in the Barr building, than the Smiths, at General Motors.

At Smith headquarters, as at Hoover headquarters, there's the same snappy atmosphere of not knowing what it's all about.

There's the same running 'round and 'round in circles. There's the same confusion and inefficiency and irresponsibility that probably has prevailed at every campaign headquarters since the republican

That all these gyrations do to a candidate any legitimate good is unbelievable.

The two committees have personnel in the neighborhood of 1,000 apiece.

After all, all a candidate has to broadcast is a statement of his attitude on a few essential public questions. There is only one of him. He cannot possibly dictate to more than a single stenographer. Why he needs more, except a little office help to run errands, is a mystery.

A job with a campaign committee is supposed to be a venal thing for a recent college graduate or co-ed, as calculated to introduce the young person to the intricacies of our electoral system.

Such youths of both sexes are numerous about the rival headquarters—studying practical politics.

Personally I wouldn't do such places—to develop altruism.

Big campaign organizations are extremely expensive and there was a dreadful howl about the high cost of elections not long ago.

It has practically subsided now, but a few radicals are still keeping it up, among them Senator Norris. His contention is that people should simply go to the polls and vote if much money is spent, he maintains that it inevitably influences ballots, directly or indirectly.

He won't succeed in preventing it between now and next November, but it seems certain to be an important issue in congress throughout the next few sessions.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

We hear plenty of sneers about the "respectable" person. Modern literature often more than hints that in order to LIVE one must be at least a put.

The dictionary gives the definition of this much abused word "respectable" as "deserving of respect," adding in parenthesis that in the "common and authorized sense of the term a man may be a knave or a fool and yet be a most respectable man." It is this latter version that is generally accepted. Very rightly we don't wish to be classed as that kind of a "whited sepulchre." But to be "deserving of respect" is surely worth while. In fact, one who realizes that they can no longer command the respect of others is a pretty pitiable object.

We of the twentieth century are getting a bit more tolerant of human weakness—at least we hope we are. We no longer stone the "fallen woman." We try to help her up and over her fault. But bucking the conventions, "Living our own lives" as we say, very often loses us the respect of our associates, and no matter how splendidly a girl comes back after a misstep, she does lose something that can never be replaced. And very often she also loses her lover, for it is one of the things that few women can understand, but a man usually protects the girl and she REALLY loves even against himself.

"Troubled Brown Eyes," you feel that you are not strong enough to resist temptation to run away. There is a time, you know, when "discretion is the better part of valor." If you could get away for a time you might break the spell and be strengthened. I wish I had you here to hold you safe for awhile. Could you confide in anyone—your brothers—who would you fight for yourself? Whichever way you turn, you are a girl, may mean little, it may make the boy think he can take advantage of the girl in other ways, you see.

By a queer coincidence, the same mail that brought "Brown Eyes" letter brought one also from Marthalee, who is having a similar experience with her lover, but, unlike the former, Marthalee cannot understand a man really loving a girl and "wanting to make a low thing of her," as she says. "Each time he renews his plea I find myself growing more bitter toward him," she says. "I have sworn to keep myself pure for my husband and babies and I feel that if he really loved me he would try to help me keep this vow. I love this boy, but the very next time he brings this up I am explaining to him that we are 'quitting' for good and all." And that's that. Hurrah!

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I have been going with a fellow four years. Is it proper for me to ask him to go to a boat ride with me? Is it proper to give him a birthday gift? If so, what? SEVENTEEN AND NEVER BEEN KISSED."

Yes, I don't believe it would be considered a breach of etiquette to at least broach the subject of the boat ride, as you have been going together four years. And for a birthday present, it depends on what kind of a boy he is. Some boys like books, others would be pleased with a giddy pair of suspenders, a handsome tie, nice pen or pencil, belt, belt buckle, book ends, smoking stand, pocket book or, if he has a car, something for the car.

Lonesome Sally wants to know whether it is "proper for a boy to kiss a girl when he takes her home, and if not, why? Also, 'How can you win the love of a boy whom you love?' Likewise, 'Is it all right for a girl to go home with a boy when he goes with a girl friend of yours?'

If you are not engaged to the boy it is not really proper to let him kiss you. The reason is that kisses of that kind don't mean anything and are a waste of good material. To win a boy whom you love depends largely on the boy and your opportunities. I should say a joyful, sympathetic and understanding companion would win if anything. Don't go home with a boy friend of your girl friend's if it will hurt her feelings.

We noticed that the cruel cannibal flew straight inland. Then way off in the distance we saw the tops of some high trees. It was toward them he was taking his course. Soon he disappeared within the grove. And you may well believe that we were mighty glad to watch him out of sight. "What?" cried Peter and the two bunnies in chorus. "Rose into the air and sailed off right over our heads," declared Mrs. Bobolink. "Yes, and then we crept out of the seaweed and hopped along the sand for a bit to gaze after him," continued Bobolink. "My, but it felt good to stretch our cramped legs!"

Reserve Slugging Beats Peebles Tigers 10 To 7

DURNBAUGH AND KLEE HAVE BIG DAY FEATURING LOCAL VICTORY

Visiting Rallies Late In Game Fail To Overtake Xenia; Chambliss Boys Run Wild On Socks Sunday.

FOUNDING out sixteen hits, including a home run, three triples and two doubles for a total of twenty-seven bases, the Reserves defeated the Peebles, O., Tigers 10 to 7 to register their sixteenth victory of the season at Washington Park Sunday afternoon.

Durnbaugh, Reserve center fielder, and the team's leading hitter, celebrated his return to the lineup after a two-week's vacation by smacking a home run, triple and single in five times at bat.

Ollie Klee, formerly with the Cincinnati Reds, made his appearance in left field for the Reserves and his stick work also featured. Klee contributed a triple, double, beat out a perfect bunt and walked once. He stole two bases. Barlow and Conley also made three hits apiece, all singles. The Reserve captain ended his slump after going hitless in the last three games.

Every player in the Reserve lineup hit safely at least once except Pitcher Schlupf. The Reserves ran wild on the socks, piling seven bases.

The visitors found Schlupf for ten bingles. J. Kidders, substitute outfielder, led his team at bat. He had a perfect day with three hits, including a double, triple and single in as many times at bat.

E. Matheny, who started in the box for the Tigers, was no puzzle and was succeeded in the fourth by H. Thomas, who came in from center field. Thomas had more stuff on the ball.

The damage, however, had been done, as the Reserves scored seven runs during Matheny's stay on the mound. The apparent safe lead proved none too large after all as the visiting nine, after being blanked with two hits in the first five innings, tallied seven runs in the last four frames.

The Reserve infield executed three double plays which helped Schlupf out of several dangerous situations.

Four hits produced three Reserves runs in the first inning. Wirtz led off with a looping hit over third and stole second. Barlow singled to center, Wirtz stepping at third after drawing a throw home which enabled Barlow to reach second. Conley beat out a hit to short, Wirtz scoring and Barlow taking third. Durnbaugh fanned. Barlow scored as Tangeman was being thrown out at first. Klee doubled to deep center, scoring Conley, but slipped and fell rounding second base and was caught.

After being retired in one, two, three order in the second, the massacre continued in the third when the Reserves batted entirely around and scored four times. With one out, Barlow singled and stole second. Conley walked. Durnbaugh leaned against a fast ball and smashed a home run to left. Barlow and Conley scoring ahead of him. Tangeman popped to third. Klee tripled to left center. Cyphers' hit to center scored him. Weller was safe when the short-stop booted his grounder, but the best Schlupf could do was a roller to the pitcher.

Reserves wasted two singles after two were out in the fourth and also failed to score in the fifth although Klee, first up in the round, walked and stole second and third, and Cyphers, who followed him, walked and stole second.

Only sixteen batters faced Schlupf in the first five innings. In the sixth he began to weaken and the Tigers earned two runs. H. Thomas walked and J. Kidders tripled. C. Thomas raised a sacrifice fly, admitting the runner.

The visitors uncorked another rally in the seventh, good for three runs. Kidders singled. Wirtz made a wonderful stop of the ball but threw wildly over first, the batter taking second. L. Matheny skied to Klee. Scott hit to Schlupf, who whiffed and caught. Kidders, between second and third. He was eventually run down. Van Meter was given a life when Wirtz kicked his slow roller around the diamond. Scott scored on a single by H. Thomas. Klee and Durnbaugh did the Alphonses and Gaston act on a difficult fly by J. Kidders and the ball dropped safe for a double, plating two more runs. C. Thomas popped to Tangeman for the third out.

After counting two more runs in the sixth when Barlow was hit by a pitched ball, Durnbaugh tripled and raced home when a return throw of the catcher eluded the pitcher, the Reserves saw their lead dwindle further in the eighth.

Gaffin opened with a single but Riffle hit into a double play. Klee dropped a fly by Kidders and L. Matheny followed with a single, scoring him. The Reserves got this tally back in the eighth when Tangeman tripled and scored on an out at first.

After the first two batters had been retired in the ninth, the visitors again threatened. Successive singles by J. Kidders and C. Thomas and an error by Conley filled the bases. Schlupf temporarily lost control and passed Riffle on four pitched balls, forcing in J. Kidders. Kidders bounced to Cyphers, who touched Gaffin going to third for the last out.

Reserves will meet the Monty Young baseball team from Dayton here next Sunday afternoon.

INDIANS VANQUISH MT. STERLING TEAM

J. Minor and L. McCarty collaborated in hurling the Xenia Indians to a 4 to 3 victory over Mt. Sterling in an exciting baseball game at Mt. Sterling Sunday afternoon.

Between them, the Xenia pitchers struck out twelve batsmen, Minor whiffing five and McCarty, seven. Another McCarty boy, playing third base for the Indians, had a perfect day at bat with four hits, including a brace of doubles. E. Minor, catcher, contributed three hits, one of which was for two bases.

Mt. Sterling is a former Central Ohio League team. Persol, said to have at one time been with the Toledo Mudhens of the American Association, pitched for Mt. Sterling.

The Xenia Indians are challenging any team in Greene County to a game or series of games to decide the county baseball championship for 1928.

GREENUP, Ky., Aug. 13.—The body of William Ehnart, 35, of Wurtland, Ky., was found today at a B. and O. crossing near here. It is believed he had been struck by a train sometime during the night while walking the ties.

BAYLIFFS DEFEAT PARK ATHLETICS FOR SECOND TIME

Bowersville Bayliffs made it two out of three from the Park Athletics Sunday at Jamestown, winning 7 to 5.

The Bayliffs spotted the Parks one run in the second, when Ewing threw over third with two down, allowing the runner to score. The next batter struck out.

In the third with one gone, the next three touched Evans for singles, filling the bases. He then forced Massie to hit a liner to Kersey and the runner was doubled up at third, retiring the side.

The visitors came back in the sixth and tied the score at four all, Massie doubling down the left foul line. Bull doubled down the right foul line. Hornberger popped out to second. John struck out. H. Thomas, c.f.p. 3 2 1 1 0 1. E. Matheny, p. 1 0 1 0 1 0. J. Kidders, cf. 3 2 3 2 0 0.

UNROMANTIC UNCLE SAM HAS SENT MISS SPAIN BACK HOME

Senorita Agueda Adorna (Miss Spain) and, inset, her chaperone, Senora Mila Gra de Alba.

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch To The Gazette

NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 13.—Ah, seniors, your Uncle Sam is too businesslike, and oh, so unromantic.

What does he know, that unromantic Uncle Sam, about the heart of a young Spanish girl? And what does he know about a girl's ambition for stage life, to dance the graceful steps of Spain beyond the footlights, to carve a great career for herself?

Nothing, nothing at all and what is worse, he doesn't appear to give a hoot.

That's why the beautiful Senorita Agueda Adorna, pride of Spain and her chaperone, Senora Mila Gra de Alba, were held at Algiers across New Orleans harbor, to be sent posthaste back to Spain as soon as Uncle Sam gets around to that, to him, unimportant business.

It seems that Senorita Adorna, as Miss Spain, came to America to participate in an international beauty pageant at Galveston, Tex.

Meets Cavalier

Came one night in a New Orleans hotel lobby when a handsome young man saw the beautiful 18-year-old senorita. He bowed as respectfully as only the men of the continent, my seniors, know how to bow. That bow won Agueda. She permitted him to speak.

Under the kindly eye of Senora de Alba, the pair saw each other often. They became friendly. The man, an American who had spent much time in Venezuela and spoke Spanish as well as one of the great Dons, fell in love.

Agueda liked him tremendously but failed to fall in love. He was a bit "too American." However, he awakened in her a desire to stay in America and try a stage career. She determined to become a great dancer and a great actress.

The days went by as Senorita Adorna made her rosy plans. Came a rude awakening. Immigration authorities decided the girl and her chaperone must go back to the old country.

As soon as the necessary papers were in hand, said Immigration Inspector I. H. Vincent, back would go the pair. Under the conditions of a visitor's passport, he explained, the girl could not accept employment; she must enter as an immigrant to do so.

Thinks Uncle Sam Mean

Neither was under visitor's bond and the Spanish consul here declined to accept the responsibility for their departure from this country before the expiration of their passports.

So they were sent to nearby Algiers to be held for deportation. "I do not understand," Agueda told reporters in French, "why your Uncle Sam should refuse to allow me to stay. I want very much to make a career for myself here. It is not a bit nice."

"Marry to my American friend? No, I won't do that. He doesn't smoke or dance or do anything. And I am Spanish. How could I be happy with a fellow like that? I want most of all a career."

"However, all my plans are spoiled if I am not allowed to stay."

But Senorita Adorna hasn't given up the fight. She is determined to win a place in America, where she likes everyone but this fellow, this very inconsiderate fellow, Uncle Sam.

Poems that Live

TO CRITICS

When I was seventeen I heard From each censorious tongue, 'I'd not do that if I were you,' You see you're rather young.

Now that I number forty years, I'm quite as often told Of this or that I shouldn't do Because I'm quite too old.

O earping world! If there's an age Where youth and manhood keep An equal poise, alas! I must Have passed it in my sleep.

Emerges From China

Chinese revolutions have a fascination for C. S. Hirsch, above, American adventurer and author. He has "attended" every revolution and incipient war in China since 1920, and has personally known every dictator from Dr. Sun Yat Sen to Chang-Tso-Lin.

Returning to the U. S. to recuperate, after the rigors of campaigning with the Nationalists, Hirsch declares the present internal warfare will last for at least 100 years more.

He was compelled to hold her close and they were both sweetly conscious of each other. Janet closed her eyes and felt she had never been so happy before. Ballard smiled to himself at her sparkling eyes and the color that came and went in her cheeks. She was like a little girl at her first party. How he loved seeing her that way. Text greeted them with one of her famous back slaps, and sat them at a two-by-four table in the corner.

Janet stood out like a shining little jewel in the crowd of midnight revelers. Suddenly Ballard hoped that she would not enjoy herself. He hated the thought of her liking an atmosphere of that sort—and regretted that he had taken her. But someone else would take her, he consoled himself, and it was better that she should cut her night club tooth with him.

Six girls danced out in costumes that were startlingly close to nature. Janet shuddered at the thought of having to come right out among so many people dressed like that. She looked at Ballard and nodded.

"I suppose you'd think I was an old prune if I told you I'd die if I came out in a bunch like this sans clothes. It seems different on the stage, somehow."

"It is different," Ballard assured her, seriously.

"Well, it's bad enough, anyway. I nearly died tonight when the curtain went up in my first draped number."

Ballard concealed a smile. He was glad she felt that way about it. But before he had a chance to comment something happened that made them the cynosure of all eyes.

Text was beside their table, suddenly announcing, in her raucous voice:

MAKE-UP

A Romance of the Footlights BY ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY

READ THIS FIRST:

Janet Mary James, eighteen, sweet and clever and good, has an ambition to go on the stage because her mother, who died the night she was born, had been a famous opera star. Janet meets Dr. Ballard Riley, who is known as a woman hater. Ballard hates her up, and Janet gets a lot of fun out of having a date with him. Janet meets Sir Henry Martindale, a rather old gentleman, who becomes interested in her stage career. He takes Janet to meet Mort Golstein, famous musical revue producer. Mort has her sing and dance, and engages her for a number in his new show. Janet is attending rehearsals.

At the rehearsal she meets Corinne Malory, a tired little chorus girl, broke, who has gone hungry for several days. Janet takes her to lunch, and they become friends. Janet is anxiously waiting for her call to go on the stage at rehearsal.

Rhodine Deslys, one of the show girls, takes a dislike to Janet, and they are bitter enemies. Rhodine is particularly disagreeable on the opening night of the new show.

Ballard Riley sends Janet a box of flowers on the great night, and Rhodine tries to get them.

After the show Ballard Riley takes Janet to a famous night club. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

Ballard smiled to himself at her sparkling eyes and the color that came and went in her cheeks. She was like a little girl at her first party. How he loved seeing her that way. Text greeted them with one of her famous back slaps, and sat them at a two-by-four table in the corner.

Janet stood out like a shining little jewel in the crowd of midnight revelers. Suddenly Ballard hoped that she would not enjoy herself. He hated the thought of her liking an atmosphere of that sort—and regretted that he had taken her. But someone else would take her, he consoled himself, and it was better that she should cut her night club tooth with him.

Six girls danced out in costumes that were startlingly close to nature. Janet shuddered at the thought of having to come right out among so many people dressed like that. She looked at Ballard and nodded.

"I suppose you'd think I was an old prune if I told you I'd die if I came out in a bunch like this sans clothes. It seems different on the stage, somehow."

"It is different," Ballard assured her, seriously.

"Well, it's bad enough, anyway. I nearly died tonight when the curtain went up in my first draped number."

Ballard concealed a smile. He was glad she felt that way about it. But before he had a chance to comment something happened that made them the cynosure of all eyes.

Text was beside their table, suddenly announcing, in her raucous voice:

"Behold, folks, the little girl who knocked 'em cold in the 'Farce of 1928' tonight—Janet Mary James. Come on now, folks, give this little girl a nice big hand."

Janet sent Ballard a wild, scared look, and he nodded encouragement. "Get up and give them a little bow, Janet." She turned crimson as Text put her arm around her. The place went wild with applause, whistles and horns blew and favors were tossed in the air.

She was getting the applause of a celebrity. Ballard had never been quite so amused in his life—especially when Text next introduced a famous motion picture star and her prince husband.

"There now, Janet," he called her attention to the honor, "you see you are more important than movie stars. They are held over till last—and you get the first introduction."

She had her bearings by this time, and smiled naturally, drawing herself up haughtily.

"Sir! You better treat me with proper dignity hereafter. And remember, I am no longer a child—but a famous woman!"

They both burst out laughing, and Ballard called her Miss James the rest of the evening.

An hour in the club crowded to capacity and filled with smoke, gave Janet a headache. She tried to imagine what it must be like to spend hours every night in such an atmosphere like a lot of people did. They tried to dance and the floor was too crowded. But she realized what a marvelous dancer Ballard was, and wished they had a whole big floor all to themselves so they could dance and dance for hours.

He was compelled to hold her close and they were both sweetly conscious of each other. Janet closed her eyes and felt she had never been so happy before. Ballard smiled to himself at her sparkling eyes and the color that came and went in her cheeks. She was like a little girl at her first party. How he loved seeing her that way. Text greeted them with one of her famous back slaps, and sat them at a two-by-four table in the corner.

He kissed her tenderly.

lard wanted to crush her to him. He held her so closely, suddenly, that she looked up at him with surprise.

"Too crowded here," He released her and they went back to their table. "We'll get smashed."

Janet's heart sang. He was beginning to care for her a little. He wanted her. Why didn't he make love to her like any other man would, she wondered to herself?

But she was glad, in a way, that he would not trust himself to kiss her. It showed how deeply he was beginning to feel. She made up her mind that she would play the indifferent little sister, wouldn't marry-the-best-man-on-earth games until he believed her. Janet was wise enough to see that sentiment would scare him away. She knew how he valued his freedom. All right, she would play up to it.

By one-thirty Ballard had about enough of the club. His head felt heavy and his lungs as though all the air went out of them, but he hesitated to spoil Janet's evening. He was glad when she looked at him a little uncertainly and inquired:

"Don't you think it's time to go? I'm pretty tired."

He arose at once.

"Nothing would suit me better. We'll take a little drive and get this stale air out of our lungs. I can't stand this sort of hole long."

"Neither could I!" She shook her head at the crowd that looked as though they were just about getting started. "This wouldn't exactly be the life for me every night."

"Did you have a good time?" he asked her, when they were on the street.

She squeezed his arm and laughed up into his face.

"Of course I did. How could I help it? My first night club party—and celebrating my success tonight with a great big, sweet, handsome boy like you!"

All Janet knew, or understood, was that she cared so much for Ballard Riley that nothing else mattered. Poor, foolish Janet, who was to break her own heart.

Farm Notes

BARLEY RANKS FIRST

The United States will this year harvest about 2 per cent greater acreage of crops than last year; it is estimated by the rural economics department of Ohio State University. To Ohio farmers, the most important increases in the crop acreage are the gains of 4 per cent in corn, 30 per cent in barley, 9 per cent in potatoes, and 18 per cent in tobacco.

Ohio's crop acreage increases are in line with the trend in the country as a whole. The state will have vest corn from an acreage 8 per cent greater than last year's barley from an acreage of 96 per cent greater than last year's, potatoes from a 12 per cent greater acreage, and tobacco from a 50 per cent greater acreage.

Decreases in acreage in the country as a whole include a drop of 4 per cent in the hay acreage, of 1.5 per cent in the wheat acreage and 4 per cent in the rye acreage. Ohio decreases are much sharper in wheat, which dropped 45 per cent under last year's figure, and in hay, 12 per cent.

Influence of the winterkilling of wheat in the increased acreage of substitute crops, is clearly evident. It is pointed out by the Rural Economics Department that the acreage will not determine the production, which is still dependent upon weather conditions for many of the crops which are listed.

The Theater

Within a year 1,000 American theaters will be equipped with talking motion pictures, and within two years, 5,000 theaters will be showing them, according to the estimate of James R. Quirk, outstanding film authority.

Mr. Quirk, publisher of Photoplay Magazine, predicts that the newly developed mechanism which synchronizes sound and action on the screen will completely revolutionize the films by 1930.

Even now, he discloses, screen players are being denied contracts until they make good in silent tests as well as screen tests, so sure are the producers of the future of talking movies. "The talking pictures will relegate to second place some of our most popular screen stars," he points out. "The accents of Greta Garbo, Pola Negri, Del Rio and Lupulez, for example, will be great handicaps in casting them and the English actors, with the definite

WHERE'S THE FIRE? CLIP OUT THIS LIST OF ALARM NUMBERS

Fire Chief William Hanifan is seeking to educate the public in the correct method to be followed in turning in an alarm and in reporting a fire in order that the fire department may locate the blaze with the least possible delay.

There are twenty-four actual fire alarm boxes stationed at the most important points in various parts of the city and thirty-two locations where imaginary boxes are designated, a total of fifty-six.

The fire alarm boxes connect directly with Police Headquarters, from where the information is relayed to the engine house. The person turning in an alarm should remain at the box until the fire apparatus arrives and then direct firemen to the blaze.

A slightly different process is used in telephoning in a fire. Either call 120 or tell the operator that you wish to report a fire. Implicit directions should be given as to the location of the fire. The person giving the alarm should also stand in the street and flag the trucks in order to save time.

The imaginary fire alarm boxes are to assist firemen in reaching the most familiar points as near the scene of the fire as possible.

Following are the numbers and locations of the actual fire alarm boxes:

- 6—E. Main St., engine house.

GALE STRIKES SEABOARD; 5 MISSING FEAR PASSENGERS ON MOTORBOAT DROWN; REPORT 100 RESCUED

Tail Of Florida Hurricane Sweeps Atlantic Coast;
Threatened By New Storm; Report
Heavy Damage.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—A small motorboat containing three men and two women today was reported missing off the Jersey coast after the roaring mid-summer gale which lashed the seaboard from Chesapeake Bay to Sandy Hook.

The party left Island Beach, near Toms River, shortly before the storm broke, about midnight Saturday. Nothing has been heard of the craft, though marine men at Island Beach expressed confidence that the party found shelter somewhere along shore.

The storm striking inland in places but skirting New York, left one dead, and coast guardsmen reporting approximately one hundred rescues.

George Hopman, Jersey City fireman, was killed by a blown-down electric wire as he was stepping into a cab in front of his home.

The gale was the tail end of the tropical hurricane which swept Florida earlier in the week.

The mid-Atlantic coast is threatened with a new-born hurricane today. It was reported from Little Cayman Island in the West Indies, gathering in force and

The Olympiad officially came to a close yesterday. Queen Wilhelmina attended the closing session and received a tremendous ovation.

The equestrian competitions were among the final events on the program, Holland and Poland being tied for first place.

The last event was obstacle jumping, Spain getting first. The American contestants in this event were eliminated after the first round.

Prize winners of all nations lined up on the field at the end of today's program to receive their honors. The American contingent consisted of thirty-five persons, twelve of them women. The United States got twenty-two first prizes.

The majority of the national delegations were satisfied since thirty-one nations were represented in the prize list. The United States carried away more first prizes than the next two nations combined. These nations were Germany with eleven firsts and Finland with eight.

According to the officers the cabaret was equipped with a complete bar and tables on two floors. Most of the guests at the time of the raid were said to be youths of about 18 years.

Those arrested gave the names of Manuel Broadway, 36, said to be the cabaret owner; Harold Coker, 23, said to be the bartender; Henry Gelsley, 22, and Hazel Walther, 24, all of Toledo.

STATE CANDIDATES WIND UP CAMPAIGNS AS ELECTION NEARS

Begg, Cooper, Turner
Fight Attracts Attention

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 13.—"The most effective guaranty of the election of worthy officials is the nomination of proper candidates by each of the political parties," declared Governor Vic Donahey today in a proclamation urging all Ohio voters to cast their ballots at the primary elections to be held throughout the Buckeye state tomorrow.

"If each party nominates wisely, the government will be conducted faithfully, regardless of the result of the subsequent general election," Donahey's proclamation continued.

The state is, and many of its counties are, fortunate in being fairly equally divided in the numerical strength of the two major political parties," the governor said. "The result is that it is relatively easy to turn the rascals out if the party in power in state or local subdivision becomes wasteful, corrupt or otherwise derelict. By the same token, it is doubly easy to re-elect faithful servants with votes of confidence. Such a condition always has on public officials an influence conducive to clean, fair, honest and efficient government."

Candidates seeking the nominations for state, congressional, legislative, judicial, and county offices as well as for various local positions were putting the finishing touches to their respective campaigns today.

Major public interest apparently centered in the contest between Congressman James T. Begg, Sandusky; Myers V. Cooper, Cincinnati, and Attorney General Edward C. Turner, Columbus, for the Republican nomination for governor. Begg and Turner are scheduled to make their closing campaign speeches tonight at Toledo while Cooper is to broadcast an address tonight from Cincinnati over WLW's wavelength.

Interest in the contest for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination was heightened by an attack on the part of supporters of Commerce Director Earl D. Bloom, Bowling Green, against the candidacy of Congressman Martin L. Davey, Kent. Officials of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League were asked to immediately annul the League's endorsement of Davey for governor on the ground that Davey had endorsed Governor Al Smith for president. Bloom's candidacy for the Democratic nomination for governor also bears the stamp of the League's approval. Officials of the league replied that if any action is taken at all relative to Davey's quest for the governorship it would not occur prior to tomorrow's primary election.

Considerable interest has been attached to the race between U. S. Senator Cyrus Locher, Cleveland, and Attorney Graham Hunt, Cincinnati, for the Democratic nomination for the short term in the U. S. Senate. Locher, although classified as dry, endorsed Al Smith for president. Hunt favored modification of the Volstead act, it was announced.

There are sixty-three candidates for positions on the Democratic and Republican state ticket. These candidates seek the nominations for governor, lieutenant governor, U. S. senator, secretary of state, treasurer, auditor, attorney general, and judge of the Ohio Supreme Court. There will be two nominations for U. S. Senator by each political party and two for state supreme judge.

Nominations also will be made for congress, state senate, house of representatives, appellate court judge, common pleas and probate court judges, clerk of common pleas courts, sheriffs, county commissioners, county treasurers, surveyors, coroners, and county prosecutors and various other local positions.

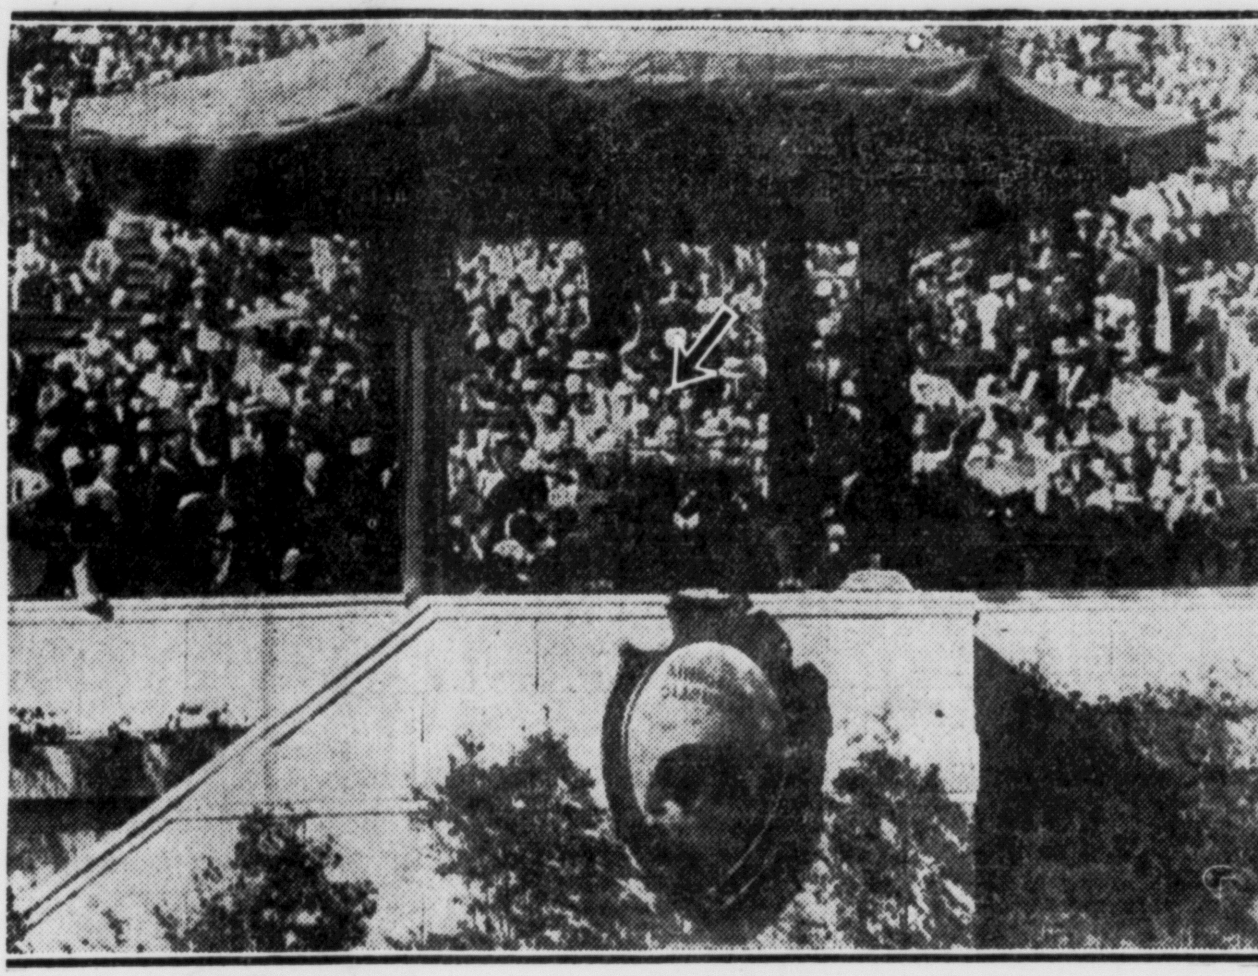

Nominations also will be made for congress, state senate, house of representatives, appellate court judge, common pleas and probate court judges, clerk of common pleas courts, sheriffs, county commissioners, county treasurers, surveyors, coroners, and county prosecutors and various other local positions.

STRATON CHURCH IS BARRED TO DEBATE; WAS "ONLY JOKING"

Pastor Offers To Meet
Governor In Public
Hall

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Dr. John Roach Straton in a new statement on his proposed debate with Governor Al Smith over the statement by the pastor that Governor Smith was "the deadliest foe of moral progress and political wisdom in America today" bars the use of Calvary Baptist Church, of which Dr. Straton is the pastor, as the place of meeting.

Previously Dr. Straton had accepted the challenge of the governor and said he would repeat the charge and allow the governor to answer him in the pulpit of Calvary Church provided the debate could be repeated in St. Patrick's Cathedral, at the same time he suggested that a larger auditorium, such as Madison Square Garden be obtained for the discussion in order to accommodate the large crowd that would be attracted.

In Dr. Straton's latest statement he says that his former acceptance naming his own church and St. Patrick's Cathedral, was made in a "jocular vein" and that under no circumstances could he permit his own church to be used for a purely political discussion.

Dr. Straton says he stands ready to meet Governor Smith at any other place and at any time except on the "Lord's Day." It also is understood that the trustees of Calvary Church have refused to permit the debate in the church.

SERIAL WRITER IS MYSTERIOUSLY DEAD

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Police today were seeking to determine the cause of the death of Hazel Deyo Batchelor, 38, widely known writer of sex novels and other fiction, who was found dead in her Greenwich Village apartment.

The body of the woman, who was said to have been in ill health for some time, was found in kneeling posture beside her bed as if she had died while in prayer.

C. D. Batchelor, cartoonist husband of the dead woman, who had been living apart from her, ridiculed the possibility that Mrs. Batchelor might have committed suicide.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—"Taken for a ride," according to police, the body of a well-dressed man, of about 35 years, was found on the outskirts of Chicago Heights today. He had been shot once in the head and three times in the body.

"TAKEN FOR RIDE"

PALO ALTO, Cal., Aug. 13.—A probe into the death of E. Higgins, millionaire, formerly of Cleveland, Ohio, was to begin today.

Higgins died Saturday evening when he was dropped from an airplane which was taking him to his Oakland home after he had attended the Hoover notification ceremony.

Brakes on the plane "froze" it is said, causing the craft to go into a ground loop. Higgins was accompanied by his wife and son. Both sustained minor injuries. The pilot was unhurt.

ALLEGED OBSCENE BOOKS BARRED FROM U. S.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Again the public morals have been protected.

The board of literary censorship of the U. S. Customs Service got into action today and excluded a set of forty-three books—termed "merchandise"—that were held to be "filled with obscenity of the rottenest and vilest character."

BOAT IS WRECKED

ALGONIA, Mich., Aug. 13.—Miss America VI, Gar Wood's newest and most powerful speed boat, built to defend the Harnsworth trophy, was in ruins in the north channel of the St. Clair River today. The boat split to pieces while traveling at a speed Wood estimated to be the fastest any hydroplane had ever gone.

Wood was at the wheel. He was not injured. His mechanic, Orlun Johnson, was thrown against the exhaust pipes and badly cut.

The engines and a considerable part of the boat sank.

The Miss America VI was launched Saturday and the accident occurred on her second trial run.

CAPITAL WASHED BY HEAVY RAINFALL; DAMAGE REPORTED

Crops And Shipping Suffer From Storm
Along Coast

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Washington heaved a sigh of relief, as for the first time since Friday, the sun broke through the clouds today.

All local records for rainfall have been broken in the last three days. Nearly nine inches of rain fell.

The storm, whipped by a sharp wind that caused the temperature to fall to almost winter levels, was an aftermath of the Florida hurricane.

Communication was crippled, crops leveled and large areas of the city and nearby Maryland and Virginia were flooded, in some places to a depth of six and seven feet.

No casualties have been reported.

Five of the main approaches to the city were blocked and scores of motorists who ventured forth Saturday in quest of a weekend holiday were still stranded along the roads.

Nineteen members of the sodality union who attended a church picnic at Bryntown, Md., were marooned on a bus from seven o'clock Saturday night to nine a. m., Sunday. Washington firemen were finally sent to their rescue.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 13.—Heavy damage by the storm was done to crops and small boats on the eastern shore of Maryland, according to word reaching here today.

At Ocean City the waves broke over the boardwalk and the spray entered the second floor of the beach hotel.

A. R. Nusse of New York and L. F. Woodruff of Camden, N. J., had a narrow escape at Centerville when the gale dashed their sail boat into a wharf and threw them overboard. The main street there was under three feet of water.

In the vicinity of Chestertown small craft was sunk and crops were badly damaged.

The midshipmen were called out at Annapolis to save thirty small boats tied up to the training dock. The boats were flooded to the gun- whales but quick work by the midshipmen prevented any from sinking.

The tobacco crop was reported to be practically ruined in some of the eastern lowland counties.

The temperature dropped to a record low level in Baltimore. Streets and basements were flooded here.

Candidate Makes Clear
Stand On Wet-Dry
Question

By William K. Hutchinson

STANFORD UNIVERSITY,
Cal., Aug. 13.—Herbert Hoover, dry; Alfred E. Smith, wet!

For the first time since its adoption eight years ago, prohibition today became a major issue in a presidential election with Herbert Hoover, the Republican nominee, definitely committed to the outlawry of intoxicating liquors.

The issue will be joined ten days hence when Governor Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic nominee, declares himself for liberalization of the Volstead act.

Hoover today stood on record as opposed to repeal of the eighteenth amendment, as pledged to efficient enforcement of the Volstead act, as opposed to nullification of the eighteenth amendment through liberalization of the Volstead act and as pledged to the correction of all abuses of the prohibitory statutes.

In drafting this stand on prohibition for his acceptance speech, International News Service learned on the highest authority, Hoover believed he was "burning all his bridges behind him" so far as prohibition is concerned. The Republican nominee believed he had definitely committed himself to the dry side of the prohibition question. That, at least, was his purpose, according to unimpeachable authority.

The nominee, however, did not and does not desire to battle out the campaign on the prohibition issue. He looks upon prohibition

SAY BLACKMER PLOT FOILED

PARIS, Aug. 13.—A sensational report that an attempt was made to "kidnap" Henry M. Blackmer, rich American oil magnate and missing Teapot Dome witness, was circulated here today.

The foreign office at the present time has under consideration a request from Washington for the extradition of Blackmer, who is wanted to answer a charge of perjury in connection with his famous tax statements in Colorado.

According to the report Blackmer was invited to dine on a yacht flying the United States flag. At the last moment while he was stepping into a launch to go to the yacht, one of his two bodyguards warned him that there might be a plot and prevented him from boarding the boat.

According to the newspaper Presse, the yacht was owned by enemies of Blackmer who intended to carry him to the United States once he was on board.

BANDITS ROB SAME CLERK FOURTH TIME

CLEVELAND, Aug. 13.—Hyman Bogart, young clerk at a United Cigar Store at Euclid Avenue and E. 6th Street, one of the city's busiest corners, was reported badly unnerved today following a bold-up at the store last night. It was the fourth time he has been held up in the last three months.

After police arrived Bogart fainted. "I'm going to quit this job," he said, "I can't stand it. The first three times I bit my lip and held myself together, but I can't go on any longer."

The two bandits who held the store up last night forced Bogart to lie on his back on the floor and open the safe. They then forced him into the basement, escaping with the day's cash receipts.

CLINTON, Iowa, Aug. 13.—Mrs. Etta Traverse Allen, mother-in-law of Mayor James J. Walker of New York, who underwent an operation here yesterday according to word from the hospital. She will be able to return to New York in ten days, it was said.

Her nephew, Paul Cromer, gave twelve ounces of his blood for transfusion. Mrs. Allen has been ill for some time and came to the home of her sister, Mrs. Will Hill, at Lovemoor, early in the summer with the hope the climate would benefit her.

Mrs. Walker is with her mother and expects to return with her to New York.

FIRES CAUSE DAMAGE

SORIA, SPAIN, Aug. 13.—Heavy damage has been caused by fires which have been raging in the Santa Ana forests since Thursday. A large amount of timber has been destroyed, but no casualties are reported. The extreme heat is blamed for the fires.

POLICE CHECK THREE ATTEMPTS BY PRISONER TO HANG HIMSELF

John Hartley, 48, Chillicothe, O., attempted suicide three times while in forty-five minutes after being lodged in a cell at Police Headquarters for intoxication late Sunday afternoon. Police prevented each attempt.

Hartley was found in a ditch at the edge of the corporation line on E. Main St., at 5:30 p. m. Sunday by Patrolman Fred Jones.

Fifteen minutes after being locked up in a cell, Jones discovered Hartley had removed one of two shirts he was wearing, tied it around his neck and was trying to strangle himself. The officer took the shirt away from him.

About 6 o'clock as Patrolman Charles Thompson came on duty, a colored prisoner in an adjoining cell shouted that Hartley was repeating the experiment. Hartley had removed his other shirt and knotted it around his neck. Officers took the shirt and his suspenders away.

Ten minutes later the same prisoner sang out that "it won't be long now." Jones rushed in the cell room again and found Hartley had tied his underwear around his neck, fastened the sleeves of the garment to the bars of the cell, and was hanging free. Police found him so securely tied up that they had to cut him down. This time they took all of his clothing away and Hartley spent the night "au naturel."

Only slightly the worse for the experience, Hartley was arraigned for intoxication before Mayor John W. Prugh Monday morning. He was fined $10 and costs when he pleaded guilty, but Mayor Prugh suspended the assessment and ordered him to leave the city.

FORMER PROFESSOR AT ANTIOCH PROBES LABOR CONDITIONS

It is a far cry from the chair of a college professor to the bench of a production worker in an industrial plant, employed in common labor with thousands of other workmen, but that has been the unique experience of Stanley B. Mathewson, 260 S. Broadmoor Blvd., Springfield, former director of personnel administration at Antioch College, Yellow Springs.

Selected by the National Social Science Research Council to make a study of labor in industrial plants, Professor Mathewson is purposely working as a shop hand in Springfield in the interest of science. He wants to get a "slant" of the average non-union production worker in the shops of the United States.

He needed first-hand information in order to complete a task begun January 1, 1928 when he resigned the directorship of personnel administration at Antioch after serving six years in that capacity.

A comprehensive report on production records of labor in American industries, which is designed to throw new light on the problem of mass production, is being prepared by Prof. Mathewson for the National Council.

The new work is financed by the National Council, under a grant of the Laura Spellman Rockefeller Foundation and is under the supervision of Antioch College and the Personal Research Federation of New York City.

The purpose of the research and investigation is two-fold.

In the first place, Antioch College students obtain their education under a co-operative system by which they work part time and attend school part time. It is planned to get first hand information on some of the problems that the students encounter in their work on co-operative jobs, Mr. Mathewson says.

The other purpose is to make a scientific investigation of the working habits of non-union labor.

ELECT SPARKS AS SURVEYOR

Harry Sparks, candidate for the Republican nomination for county surveyor, offers his name to the electorate of Greene County on the basis of a life-long residence in this county and a varied experience in his profession.

Born and reared in Xenia, Mr. Sparks prepared himself for his chosen profession by attending the Xenia public schools, and then graduating from a qualified college of civil engineering.

His professional career has included positions that guaranteed him valuable experience in the field of engineering. He has served as civil engineer for both private and public enterprises, has been city engineer of Xenia, and city engineer of Lansing, Mich. His records in both of these positions are open to public inspection and will show him to have given an honest, fair, intelligent and capable administration of his duties. His experience also in the business and manufacturing worlds, has helped to season him in the duties of administration of the office of county surveyor, which adds to his qualifications for that office.

Mr. Sparks has served as city commissioner of Xenia but has never held an elective office in the county. He is a life-long Republican and is conducting his campaign on his merits for the office, and without resort to mud-slinging or similar tactics.

Because of a public-spirited effort to assist the citizens of his home town in providing a community auditorium in Shawnee Park, Mr. Sparks has been unable to give much time to his campaign. After drawing plans for the community building free of charge, Mr. Sparks volunteered to supervise construction of the building on the same basis, with the result that he has been spending his time and efforts in a project of public value without remuneration and at personal sacrifice. The fact that he has been unable to call on the voters personally has been a keen disappointment to him.

A vote for Harry Sparks Tuesday will be a vote for honest administration, integrity in office and capable engineering services. With the many projects facing this office, the county owes it to itself to acquire the best talent possible.

A vote for Mr. Sparks will be in the best interests of the county and your support at the primary will be greatly appreciated.

as a "great moral experiment," as he has publicly stated, and feels it should be decided on a non-partisan basis and not as a part of any political campaign. The Republican nominee does not look upon the Volstead act as "perfect." He feels there should be an impartial investigation of prohibition, its problems and abuses, methods of enforcement and means of correcting abuses. When the "facts" are learned, he is ready to have a new enforcement act placed on the statute books which will carry out the purpose of the eighteenth amendment—namely, the prohibition of the sale, manufacture or transportation of intoxicating liquors.

Hoover's position can be summarized in these words: "If the Volstead act is not workable, we should have an investigation to learn how we can make it a success."

Hoover, in his speech Saturday, believed he cleared up all misunderstanding about his position on prohibition. He was said to feel there is no need of further discussion of the question by him. If he does speak on the subject again during the campaign, it will be only because the public has become confused about it and in that event, Hoover will declare himself → dry as to leave no doubt in any man's mind.

There was considerable turmoil here over the week end about Hoover's prohibition stand, due to the action of one of his advisers in giving out an unauthorized "well interpreted" of his speech. This self-appointed "spokesman" said Hoover really stood for liberalization of the Volstead act, much like Governor Smith, and had tried to so assert himself in the speech. When Hoover learned of this interpretation word was passed out from his headquarters that the "spokesman" had been permanently silenced.

Hoover's attitude toward prohibition can be understood in his career is studied. He was raised a Quaker and as a child was taught in that faith's rigid creed that drinking was a physical blight and moral sin. As a youth, in mining camps, he saw the vicious side of drunkenness and the saloon evil. He lost some of his moral scruples against intoxicating liquors while traveling about the world, but he welcomed the eighteenth amendment.

He termed it a "noble" social experiment. Since its adoption he carefully avoided homes where liquor was served at the table in defiance of the law. His closest social friends in Washington are known as "teetotalers." He is a passionate defender of the constitution, and as such has no respect for men who defy any portion of it.

Hoover will rest here until Thursday night, when he begins his return trip to Washington. He will spend Friday in Los Angeles, Monday in Topeka, visiting Senator Curtis, three days in Iowa and reach Washington, about August 26.

VOTE FOR LACKEY

For Commissioner
Next Tuesday, Aug. 14th

Now Serving First Term

We are too busy with official work to canvass the county or make a house to house call.

The present Board has made and repaired more roads and streets than has ever been done in one term of the County Board. Drainage has been our first work on all streets and roads in each town in the county. We have made or assisted in constructing more new streets. The roads are in better condition than ever before, with less expense to the county, using in the last two years only one-half of the two mill levy.

We were the first to suggest rest rooms and comfort stations for the public in the Court House. How does the Court House lawn look to you? More people out of the mud than ever before.

The present Board is very logically situated. Mr. Beam, in the south west part of the county, Mr. Eavey at Xenia and Lackey in Ross Township.

The Board has always been very harmonious in all county work and deliberations and plans. We are better prepared to serve the county successfully than four years ago.

We are only asking the customary second term and will appreciate your support.

Our present board is different in that they do not use tobacco in any form or cuss or swear.

Let's keep it that way by the usual X next Tuesday.

Respectfully your Servant,

J. H. Lackey.

RECORD PRIMARY VOTE HERE ON TUESDAY BELIEVED CERTAIN

Greene County voters will go to the polls Tuesday to select Republican and Democratic candidates for county offices and to ballot on candidates of both parties for state and district offices.

Polling places in both the city and rural districts will be open from 6:30 a. m. to 6:30 p. m. Officials of the Board of Elections predict an unusually heavy vote at the primary and express the opinion that the number of ballots cast Tuesday in Xenia and Greene County may quite possibly establish a local record for a primary election.

R. E. Dunkel, clerk of the election board, announced that 105 absent voter's ballots had been cast when the time expired Saturday at midnight. This in itself is believed to have set a new record for absentee voting in a primary election.

Efforts are being made to stimulate voting and election board officials urge that all citizens of age go to the polls.

Chief interest in the local primary election centers in the Republican factional fight for control of the party central committee and nomination for several county offices for which there are contests.

The anti-Marshall group is seeking to retain party control in Greene County. This faction has dominated the party for the last year after wrestling control from the Marshall-Gowdy faction, which held sway for a number of years.

Factional leaders are also centering attention upon several county offices, including the positions of prosecuting attorney and probate judge, both of which are held by Marshall-Gowdy men.

Judge S. C. Wright is seeking re-nomination for a second term as probate judge and the opposition is furnished by Mayor John W. Prugh, Xenia. Prosecutor J. C. Marshall, seeking a third term, is opposed by Attorney William S. Howard, of the anti-Marshall group.

Contests also exist for county surveyor and county commissioner. W. J. Davis, incumbent, is being opposed for surveyor by Harry Sparks, former city engineer in Xenia. There are three candidates for two vacancies on the board of county commissioners. J. H. Lackey and A. E. Beam are seeking re-election. John A. North, who formerly served one term as county commissioner, is also a candidate for the office.

The Democratic party has no local contests. No candidates for county office appear on the ticket, but voters in this party are being asked to write in the names of the following candidates: Judge of Probate Court—Attorney George H. Smith; clerk of courts—R. E. Dunkel; sheriff—Ralph Kendig; commissioner—Arthur Cummings; treasurer—Lawrence Barber; prosecutor—Attorney George H. Thome.

Attorney F. L. Johnson, Xenia, is opposing Charles Brand, Urbana, incumbent, for the Republican nomination for congressman from the Seventh Congressional District. Harry E. Rice, Xenia publisher, is opposed for the Democratic nomination for the office.

VOTING PLACES FOR PRIMARY TUESDAY

The voting places for the various precincts in Xenia city for the primary election Tuesday will be as follows:

- Precinct 1—Pratt's grocery, W. Main St.
- Precinct 2—Anna Comfort, Cincinnati Ave.
- Precinct 3—Thomas Cobb, Center St.

Are You Ready

When your Children Cry
for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless, Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

SOUL FEAR—The wicked flee when no man pursueth; but the righteous are bold as a lion.—Prov. 28:1.

REVOLUTION IN MEN'S DRESS

A correspondent asks why men shouldn't issue a declaration of independence in the matter of dress. Women, he says, have long since adopted common sense, often excessively common, sartorial principles. What they wear these hot days is literally next to nothing, while the men can't even remove their coats in a hotel dining room without causing arched eyebrows and indignant stares.

As a remedy, this correspondent suggests male garb consisting of short pants, light socks and a shirt. Thus, coats and vests are eliminated at one fell stroke and tradition collapses with a bang.

We hate to oppose so alluring a suggestion. But our correspondent has neglected one extremely important, though somewhat incidental, consideration. That is the question of pockets.

It is to be presumed that the short pants recommended would have five pockets—one to the portside, one to the starboard, one fore and two abaft. These would take care of a handkerchief, small change, a roll of bills, a penknife, a watch and a keyring.

In the shirt, there would be another receptacle for cigars and matches. But a pipe smoker would be out of luck, and what in the world could a fellow do with his fountain pen, his pencil, his automobile registration card and his current mail?

The coat provides the only solution. Far from being a stickler for some finical code of etiquette, we simply view this issue from the utilitarian point of view. And until our radical correspondent proposes an adequate substitute for pockets, we shall continue, sartorially speaking, to be a reactionary defender of things as they are.

ANOTHER INDUSTRIAL REVOLUTION

The possibility that Great Britain is on the verge of another great industrial revolution, similar to that which heralded the approach of the industrial age in the eighteenth century, is pointed out by the American Section of the International Chamber of Commerce in a report from Paris as one of the developments which is attracting the attention of continental observers.

"The 'coming industrial revolution in Great Britain,'" the report states, "is but one of the significant phrases used by these observers, who profess to see a new era of great industrial consolidations under the coming protection of a higher tariff which may ultimately lead to a Pan-Britannic Customs Union, and a new orientation of British trade and British trade policies. The three outstanding figures in this movement, as it is observed on the continent, are Sir Alfred Mond, who is successfully building up a vigorous Pan-Britannic customs movement; Sir Arthur Balfour, who is organizing the statistical survey of British industry on which to base plans for a business revival; and Winston Churchill, who, in his recent budget address, outlined a series of reforms destined to relieve industries oppressed by an antique taxation system and to stimulate them by further tariff and financial concessions."

MYTHS AND NIGHTMARES

A business predictor says we are going to see renewed prosperity and he forecasts the disappearance of the presidential year nightmare. The tradition that a presidential election year is a bad year for business may not be serious enough to be called a nightmare, but it surely should be laid forever among the discarded myths of the republic. Now that both political parties are in practical agreement on the fundamentals of government and policy, nothing terrible is going to happen to the United States of America no matter who is elected president. If we recognize that obvious fact we can find no cause for any depression of business this year.

STOP THIS

There must be no rolling pin championship in America. It is a dangerous idea. The Boston Post prints the picture of a Washington woman who claims the record as a rolling pin thrower with a toss of 56 feet and three inches. Comes now a Massachusetts woman who says she can throw a rolling pin without handles, weighing two pounds, 57 feet underhand and 50 feet overhand. With a handle in one end she says she can throw it 65 feet underhand and 80 feet overhand. Here is a situation that men must do something about. If necessary they must invoke the aid of state legislatures or the federal government in a desperate attempt to declare rolling pin practice unconstitutional. Suppose women should add accuracy to distance.

HANGING TOO LATE

Hanging the criminal or burning him up in the electric chair comes too late to do the individual who was wronged by the crime much good. It is true there is too much sloppy pity wasted on morons and the vicious when they fail to control their impulses and habits and enter on a career of crime. There is doubtless plenty of humanitarianism and to spare in prisons. The fact is, however, that a much wiser generation that will come after us—we hope—will spend more time and more brains studying crime and its causes and less time on methods of punishment. Whether the criminal is locked up for life or snapped out at the end of a rope is a mere incident in current history. But it is extremely important that we should some day arrive at and tabulate the principal causes of crime and take steps to prevent the breeding of morons, insane persons, feeble-minded, and all those incapables who drift along the borderland of human intelligence.

FEARS AND TEARS

In the study of crime and criminals we should do with fears and tears. The question must be faced in the calm, cold, analytical manner of the true scientist. Between the sob sisters and their equally sobby brothers who think a jail should be a summer hotel and criminals should be fed on tea, cake, and champagne, and their hard-headed compatriots who believe that a chicken thief ought to be electrocuted, there must be some middle ground of common sense.

The Diary of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK.—I nominate for the hall of heroines Miss Anita Tully, dramatic soprano. Miss Tully is starring in the Wagnerian music festival in New York after six years of study under American and European instructors. And she obtained the money for her instruction by working in that dreaded place, the New York Morgue!

Twelve hours a day, first as a secretary, and later as a pathological technician, she worked among the unclaimed dead in order to be able to cultivate her voice evenings and Sundays.

The Morgue is not in any of the sight-seeing itineraries, and few persons ever visit it except on business or upon a sad mission, but to me it is one of the city's most interesting places. No one can visit it regularly without becoming something of a philosopher.

I have a tip for those who go in for collecting first editions of the great and the near great. The files of the Engineering and Mining Journal contain more than a score of original contributions, on a variety of subjects, by Herbert Hoover. The Republican presidential candidate and his wife are the joint authors of a book the translation from the Latin of an ancient volume on mining processes.

Speaking of candidates, a slip of the tongue which made Governor Al Smith say facilitate when he meant facilitate caused the moviegoers in which he made his debut as a film actor to be jerked. The error was not discovered until the picture was ready to be released.

There are lots of us who muffle our words when we get on our feet to speak. If an experienced spellbinder like Candidate Smith does it, then the untrained speaker need not feel ruined when his tongue slips and he uses the wrong word.

Strange hobbies are to be found among the rich and the notable. There are, of course, collectors of stamps, old coins, pottery, furniture, rugs, books and jewelry. (Peggy Hopkins Joyce, for instance.) And there also are a number of men who devote themselves to collecting canes. There is a shop in Fulton street which caters to such collectors. It is run by a man who doesn't carry a cane himself!

Low-numbered New York auto license tags are an index to political distinction and cars bearing tags with a number under 200 can "get away with murder" with traffic cops. The low numbers invariably are issued to friends of governor's aides, bosses, "mayors of the administration" and heavy contributors to party funds.

I was in a motor car with a low-numbered tag in Central park the other afternoon and the driver disregarded several traffic conventions in his desire to get down town in a hurry. Soon a motorcycle cop was in pursuit. In which the cop got near enough to the car to see the license tag, he slowed down and dropped the chase.

MENU HINT

Salmon or Tuna Fish Salad
Creamed Potatoes
Olives
Quick Coffee Cake
Fresh Berries
Presto Cake

Suppose we have invited a guest or two for luncheon and the day turns out to be hot. You know your guest will expect a substantial meal with some hot food. This menu may be baked in the oven, but the oven will not have to be heated for more than an hour at most. The potatoes are boiled in their skins early and allowed to cool, then peeled, diced and creamed, then put into a buttered baking dish, covered with buttered crumbs and baked for 15 minutes in the oven.

Salmon Salad—Flake a can of salmon with a silver or wooden fork, add half as much chopped celery and a bit of onion if you like. Mix well with your favorite salad dressing, chill and serve on lettuce with slices of cucumber and lemon for garnish.

Quick Coffee Cake—Two cups flour, one-half teaspoon salt, three teaspoons baking powder, one egg three-fourths cup milk, three tablespoons melted shortening, flavoring. Mix dry ingredients together and break egg into the middle of the mixture. Add shortening and milk. Beat mixture and flavor with a little grated rind of lemon or a few drops of vanilla. To dough left in bowl add two tablespoons sugar, one tablespoon flour and some cinnamon; rub together with the fingers and sprinkle over the batter. Dot with bits of butter. Bake in a flat pan in a hot oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) about twenty minutes.

Presto Cake—Melt one-fourth cup butter in measuring cup. Sift one cup sugar, a pinch of salt, one and one-half cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder together in mixing bowl. Drop whole egg into the cup that contains the melted shortening, fill up with milk, stir altogether in cup and pour into dry ingredients. Mix well and bake in loaf or layers. If you wish to frost it use a cup of confectioners' sugar with a tablespoon of butter and enough milk or fruit juice to make it spread easily.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

"Nerves" are one of the most serious developments of our day—they are health destroyers and beauty destroyers, and there is no cure for them except your own will power.

The first part of the cure for nerves consists of the introduction of system into your life. The more systematically we can learn to formulate our lives, the easier order creeps in to calm the jagged nerves to peace and repose.

Women who live at the mercy of their nerves and their emotions, are controlled by a misdirected will, instead of a well-poised brain.

Try to learn control, but not through that very bad habit of "fussing" or the worse one of having on hand an eternal bit of knitting or sewing. It is quite true that a woman may find an anchor for patience in some employment for her fingers or her brain. But to have on hand a bit of work that keeps her fingers busy every spare moment, whether at lecture or concert, is making a terrific drain on her nerves, a drain that she simply cannot afford to hazard.

Incassant activity whether it be that which I have just described, or a mad, eternal rush for pleasure or success is one of the ways in which the modern woman is committing slow suicide. No work is rest. You must not forget that. Reading spurs your brain. Walking spurs your energy. Sewing tires the eyes.

Answers to Correspondents

A Few Questions

"Dear Doctor: I have a few questions to ask that I think are on the minds of other people. About chewing gum: Is it harmful? I have heard that it enlarges the lips. I don't care a good deal of gum and I don't care to ruin my system or enlarge my lips! Will you also explain further regarding ozena? A friend of mine has halitosis every once in a while, and it doesn't come from his stomach or teeth so it must come from his throat or nose. Every once in a while a piece of cheesy looking, foul smelling matter is dislodged from his throat and comes into his mouth. If he rubs his Adam's apple, the same material is dislodged. This is very queer, isn't it? Is it ozena or not? Or what? Could you help us?"

"I was not long ago just at the stage where I was enough overweight to be unsightly. You know, not exactly fat, but kind of greasy. I started counting my calories. Now I have lost five pounds and there is all the difference in the world. I now look respectable. What a difference five little pounds make! I am 16, and am 5 feet 10 inches tall and weigh 145. Is that too much for a boy of my age and build? I think I am about right, now. Am I? Please answer. Your friend, C."

Yes, C, you are just about all right. The Baldwin-Wood tables give 140 pounds for good average weight for a boy of your height, but it is generally believed that it is better for growing boys and girls to be slightly over the average weight. The five pounds you reduced evidently were in excess of this.

Now about the gum: I don't believe it is harmful to chew it. I don't believe it will enlarge the lips. It may help make wrinkles when you are at the wrinkling age. I don't know whether any scientific work has been done to show whether it has any effect on the digestion, or not; probably it hasn't. Each stick of gum has about 5 calories of sugar in it, which would have to be counted if you chew many fresh sticks a day. Chewing gum is a bad habit, except in the privacy of your own room.

Ozena is a form of dry catarrh in which dry crusts form—much more than normal—which are very offensive in odor. This condition requires prolonged treatment by a specialist in the nose and throat. The application of some antiseptic ointment up the nose at night will lessen the formations. We have an article on colds and catarrh which goes into the subject more in detail. (The column rules for obtaining material we offer are to enclose two cents in coin with a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope for all articles except the reducing and gaining pamphlet, for which ten cents in coin in addition to the self-addressed, stamped envelope are necessary.)

About your friend's halitosis: It probably doesn't come from his "stomach" (by the way, C, this is spelled by the dictionaries—ach. Stupid, those dictionaries—doesn't it?) It undoubtedly comes from the cheesy bits. He has what is known as cryptic tonsils. There

By FRED C. KELLY

A friend who operates a chain of retail candy stores tells me that in the larger cities candy stores have three main buying waves—at 5:30 and 8:10 p. m., and shortly before midnight.

The buyers at 5:30 are mostly men buying candy for wives and youngsters as they start home for dinner. But why should there be a selling flurry at exactly ten minutes after eight? Because 8:30 has for many years been the conventional hour for calling on one's sweetheart, and in most cities the time required to go from downtown section to her home is about twenty minutes. Hence much candy to carry to sweethearts is bought at about 8:10 p. m.

Not much candy is sold in the average store after 11:30 p. m., but nevertheless compared with the number of pedestrians abroad at that hour, the number of sales is often higher than at any other time of the day. In other words, those who are on the street then are the very ones likely to go to a store and buy candy. For many of these are men who promised to be home much earlier and they find it advantageous to have candy as peace offerings for their wives.

Night Heron Goes to Bed at Dawn

"Well," said the cruel cannibal muttering to himself, but talking aloud so that we could hear him, "it is high time that I took myself off to the tall trees. It would never do for a Night Heron to be caught out in the daylight. I have altogether too many cousins of the day who might be glad to pick a scrap with me for being on their hunting grounds, and what a mess I should be in then! I couldn't see to jab out their eyes—I should only lose my own for my pains."

"Besides, I am getting sleepy. I do wish I could keep awake after daybreak, but I never can. I have eaten heartily and drunk my fill and had an interesting hunt for two strangers whom I might have devoured if I had found them—what more could I wish?"

"For a Night Heron I have

are dip pits in them in which food germs and cast-off epithelial cells of the tonsils, pack down and decompose. These packings are called choledochal masses. (Spring this on him.) Such tonsils may be sources of infection and may be diseased themselves, so he should consult a throat specialist. Until he does this he might massage them with the end of his toothbrush and try to free the crypts of their T. N. T.

I hope I have helped you with your problems. C. I'm glad you have a proper appreciation of looking fit, for that means keeping fit, mentally, morally and physically. Tomorrow: Answers to Mothers. EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column, in turn. Behind the Scenes in Washington

NEW YORK—Two peas in a pod are not so much alike—for even two peas do differ slightly from one another—as the headquarters of our two major political parties.

Republican headquarters occupies four floors in the Barr building in Washington. Democratic headquarters occupies a floor and a half in the General Motors building in New York. However, the acreage is about the same, for the General Motors building covers a full city block and the Barr building only a fraction of one.

It is estimated that the Democrats have 45 separate offices. I'd guess that this was a fair stand-off against the Republicans.

Considering how far apart Herbert Hoover and Al Smith are, as personalities, it does seem as if their respective groups of boosters ought to reflect this difference somewhat.

Forget it! Herb's crowd and Al's crowd swap jobs and go right on working. Herb's crew for Al and Al's bunch for Herb, and neither outfit would know it had changed sides, except from the looks of the office furniture—the Hooveres seem to have favored a more somber tone, in the Barr building, than the Smithites, at General Motors.

At Smith headquarters, as at Hoover headquarters, there's the same snappy atmosphere of not knowing what it's all about.

There's the same running 'round and 'round in circles. There's the same confusion and inefficiency and irresponsibility that probably has prevailed at every campaign headquarters since the republican form of government was invented.

That all these gyrations could do a candidate any legitimate good is unbelievable.

The two committees have personnel in the neighborhood 1,000 apiece. After all, all a candidate has to broadcast is a statement of his attitude on a few essential public questions. There is one of him. He cannot possibly dictate to more than a single stenographer. Why he needs more, except a little office help to run errands, is a mystery.

A job with a campaign committee is supposed to be a venal thing for a recent college graduate or co-ed, as calculated to introduce the young person to the intricacies of our electoral system.

Such youths of both sexes are numerous about the rival headquarters—studying political parties.

Personally I wouldn't touch such places—to develop altruism.

Big campaign organizations are extremely expensive and there was a dreadful howl about the high cost of elections no long ago.

It has practically subsided now, but a few radicals are still keeping it up, among them Senator Norris. His contention is that people should simply go to the polls and vote. If much money is spent, he maintains that it inevitably influences ballots, directly or indirectly.

He won't succeed in preventing it between now and next November, but it seems certain to be an important issue in congress throughout the next few sessions.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

We hear plenty of sneers about the "respectable" person. Modern literature often more than hints that in order to LIVE one must be at least—to put it mildly—a little unconventional.

The dictionary gives the definition of this much abused word "respectable as 'deserving of or commanding respect,'" adding in parenthesis that in the "common and authorized sense of the term a man may be a knave or a fool and yet be a most respectable man." It is this latter version that is generally accepted. Very rightly we don't wish to be classed as that kind of a "whited sepulchre." But to be "deserving of respect" is surely worth while. In fact, one who realizes that they can no longer command the respect of others is a pretty pitiable object.

We of the twentieth century are getting a bit more tolerant of human weakness—at least we hope we are. We no longer stone the "fallen woman." We try to help her up and over her fault. But bucking the conventions—"Living our own lives," as we say—very often loses us the respect of our associates, and no matter how splendidly a girl comes back after a misstep, she does lose something that can never be replaced. And very often she also loses her lover, for it is one of the things that few women can understand, but a man usually protects the girl he REALLY loves even against himself.

"Troubled Brown Eyes," you feel that you are not strong enough to resist temptation run away. There is a time, you know, when "discretion is the better part of valor." If you could get away for a time you might break the spell and be strengthened. I wish I had you here to hold you safe for awhile. Could you confide in anyone? Your brothers—who would you fight for yourself? Whichever between a boy and a girl may mean little, it may make the boy think he can take advantage of the girl in other ways, you see.

By a queer coincidence, the same mail that brought "Brown Eyes" letter brought one also from Marthelee, who is having a similar experience with her lover, but, unlike the former Marthelee cannot understand a man really loving a girl and "wanting to make a low thing of her," as she says. "Each time he renews his plea I find myself growing more bitter toward him," she says. "I have sworn to keep myself pure for my husband and babies and I feel that if he really loved me he would try to help me keep this vow. I love this boy, but the very next time he brings this up I am explaining to him that we are 'quitting' for good and all. And that's that. Hurrah!"

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I have been going with a fellow four years. Is it proper for me to ask him to go to a boat ride with me? Is it proper to give him a birthday gift? If so, what? SEVENTEEN AND NEVER BEEN KISSED."

Yes, I don't believe it would be considered a breach of etiquette to at least broach the subject of the boat ride, as you have been going together four years. And for a birthday present, it depends on what kind of a boy he is. Some boys like books, others would be pleased with a giddy pair of suspenders, a handsome tie, nice pen or pencil, belt, belt buckle, book ends, smoking stand, pocket book or, if he has a car, something for the car.

Lonesome Sally wants to know whether it is "proper for a boy to kiss a girl when he takes her home, and if not, why? Also, 'How can you win the love of a boy whom you love?' Likewise, 'Is it all right for a girl to go home with a boy when he goes with a girl friend of yours?'

If you are not inagized to the boy it is not really proper to let him kiss you. The reason is that kisses of that kind don't mean anything and are a waste of good material. To win a boy whom you love depends largely on the boy and your opportunities. I should say a jolly, sympathetic and appreciative companion would win if anything. Don't go home with a boy friend of your girl friend's if it will hurt her feelings.

legst! We noticed that the cruel cannibal flew straight inland. Then way off in the distance we saw the tops of some high trees. It was toward them he was taking his course. Soon he disappeared within the grove. And you may well believe that we were mighty glad to watch him out of sight! "I suppose you hurried off to the other direction just as I did then was sure Mr. Fox was no longer on my trail," remarked Mrs. Gray Rabbit. Bobolink, however, did not answer her. He chuckled as if at some funny remembrance, winked at his wife. Next—"Fox or Friend?"

"NOW WE KNOW WHO HE WAS, - A NIGHT HERON!"

Reserve Slugging Beats Peebles Tigers 10 To 7

DURNBAUGH AND KLEE HAVE BIG DAY FEATURING LOCAL VICTORY

Visiting Rallies Late In Game Fail To Overtake Xenia; Chambliss Boys Run Wild On Socks Sunday.

POUNDING out sixteen hits, including a home run, three triples and two doubles for a total of twenty-seven bases, the Reserves defeated the Peebles, O., Tigers 10 to 7 to register their sixteenth victory of the season at Washington Park Sunday afternoon.

Durnbaugh, Reserve center fielder, and the team's leading hitter, celebrated his return to the lineup after a two-week's vacation by smacking a home run, triple and single in five times at bat.

Ollie Klee, formerly with the Cincinnati Reds, made his appearance in left field for the Reserves and his stick work also featured. Klee contributed a triple, double, beat out a perfect bunt and walked once. He stole two bases, Barlow and Conley also made three hits apiece, all singles. The Reserve captain ended his slump after going hitless in the last three games.

Every player in the Reserve lineup hit safely at least once except Pitcher Schliff. The Reserves ran wild on the socks, pittering seven bases.

The visitors found Schliff for ten bingles. J. Kidders, substitute outfielder, led his team at bat. He had a perfect day with three hits, including a double, triple and single in as many times at bat.

E. Mathoney, who started in the box for the Tigers, was no puzzle and was succeeded in the fourth by H. Thomas, who came in from center field. Thomas had more stuff on the ball.

The damage, however, had been done, as the Reserves scored seven runs during Mathoney's stay on the mound. The apparent safe lead proved none too large after all as the visiting nine, after being blanked with two hits in the first five innings, tallied seven runs in the last four frames.

The Reserve infield executed three double plays which helped Schliff out of several dangerous situations.

Four hits produced three Reserve runs in the first inning. Wirtz led off with a looping hit over third and stole second. Barlow singled to center, Wirtz stopping at third after hitting a through home which enabled Barlow to reach second. Conley beat out a hit to short, Wirtz scoring and Barlow taking third. Durnbaugh fanned. Barlow scored as Tangeman was being thrown out at first. Klee doubled to deep center, scoring Conley, but slipped and fell rounding second base and was caught.

After being retired in one, two, three order in the second, the massacre continued in the third when the Reserves batted entirely around and scored four times. With one out, Barlow singled and stole second. Conley walked. Durnbaugh leaned against a fast ball and smashed a home run to left. Barlow and Conley scoring ahead of him. Tangeman popped to third but Klee tripled to left and scored. Cyphers hit to center scored him. Weller was safe when the shortstop booted his grounder, but the best Schliff could do was a roller to the pitcher.

Reserves wasted two singles after two were out in the fourth and also failed to score in the fifth although Klee, first up in the round, walked and stole second and third, and Cyphers, who followed him, walked and stole second.

Only sixteen batters faced Schliff in the first five innings. In the sixth, he began to weaken and the Tigers earned two runs. H. Thomas walked and J. Kidders tripled. C. Thomas raised a sacrifice fly, admitting the runner.

The visitors uncorked another rally in the seventh, good for three runs. Kidders singled. Wirtz made a wonderful stop of the ball but threw wildly over first, the batter taking second. L. Mathoney skied to Klee. Scott hit to Schliff, who whiffed and caught Kidders between second and third. He was eventually run down. Van Meter was given a life when Wirtz kicked his slow roller around the diamond. Scott scored on a single by H. Thomas. Klee and Durnbaugh did the Alphonse and Gaston act on a difficult fly by J. Kidders and the ball dropped safe for a double, placing two more runs. C. Thomas popped to Tangeman for the third out.

After counting two more runs in the sixth when Barlow was hit by a pitched ball, Durnbaugh tripled and raced home when a return throw of the catcher eluded the pitcher. The Reserves saw their lead dwindle further in the eighth.

Gaffin opened with a single but Riffe hit into a double play. Klee dropped a fly by Kidders and L. Mathoney followed with a single, scoring him. The Reserves got this tally back in the eighth when Tangeman tripled and scored on an out at first.

After the first two batters had been retired in the ninth, the visitors again threatened. Successive singles by J. Kidders and C. Thomas and an error by Conley filled the bases. Schliff temporarily lost control and passed Riffe on four pitched balls, forcing in J. Kidders. Kidders bounced to Cyphers, who touched Gaffin going to third for the last out.

Reserves will meet the Monty Young baseball team from Dayton here next Sunday afternoon.

INDIANS VANQUISH MT. STERLING TEAM

J. Minor and L. McCarty collaborated in hurling the Xenia Indians to a 4 to 3 victory over Mt. Sterling in an exciting baseball game at Mt. Sterling Sunday afternoon.

Between them, the Xenia pitchers struck out twelve batters, Minor whiffing five and McCarty, seven. Another McCarty boy, playing third base for the Indians, had a perfect day at bat with four hits, including a brace of doubles. E. Minor, catcher, contributed three hits, one of which was for two bases.

Mt. Sterling is a former Central Ohio League team. Persol, said to have at one time been with the Toledo Mudhens of the American Association, pitched for Mt. Sterling.

The Xenia Indians are challenging any team in Greene County to a game or series of games to decide the county baseball championship for 1928.

KILLED BY TRAIN

GREENUP, Ky., Aug. 13.—The body of William Enyart, 35, of Wurtland, Ky., was found today at a B. and O. crossing near here. It is believed he had been struck by a train sometime during the night while walking the ties.

MR. HARRY RILEY

to interested scores of sufferers daily. One of the most enthusiastic friends of this wonderful compound for ailments of the stomach, liver, kidney and bowels, as well as neuritis, rheumatism and extreme nervousness, is Mr. Harry Riley, R. No. 1, Xenia, who makes this voluntary statement about what this miraculous remedy did for him.

"I was a victim of rheumatism; had it so bad that I was unable to work for three or four months at a time. My kidneys were affected, and many times every night, I was forced to leave my bed. Indigestion, too, added to my troubles, and constipation, bloating and shortness of breath increased my misery.

"I had tried everything. My suffering was intense, and my absence from employment worried me. I heard of Konjola, but after so many failures to find relief I was doubtful. Just another medicine, I thought. But a number of friends, who had heard of the wonders the new medicine had achieved, urged me to try it.

"After taking Konjola for three weeks, I was a new man, and I go to work every day without pain and worry. My nights are filled with soothing, restful sleep. Constipation has disappeared, my digestion is perfect and the pains of rheumatism have left me. This quick, complete relief would be hard to believe did I not know it. Truly Konjola is more than is claimed for it, and I am happy for this opportunity to tell the world what this new medicine did in a case that I had begun to consider hopeless."

This is the usual story of Konjola. The case of Mr. Riley is just one of thousands of similar ones in which this compound of twenty-two herbs and plants, and ten other ingredients, has brought almost immediate and complete relief. Konjola asks only the chance to help you. The health for which you yearn may be yours through this marvelous new remedy. Do not despair; Konjola has opened the road to happiness in health when all else has failed in countless cases.

The Konjola Man is at the Gallagher Drug Store, Xenia, where he is daily meeting the public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Free samples given.

BAYLIFFS DEFEAT PARK ATHLETICS FOR SECOND TIME

Bowersville Bayliffs made it two out of three from the Park Athletics Sunday at Jamestown, winning 7 to 5.

The Bayliffs spotted the Parks one run in the second, when Ewing threw over third with two down, allowing the runner to score. The next batter struck out.

In the third with one gone, the next three touched Evans for singles, filling the bases. He then forced Massie to hit a liner to Kersey and the runner was doubled up at third, retiring the side.

The visitors came back in the sixth and tied the score at four all. Massie doubled down the left line. Bull doubled down the right line. Hornberger popped out to second. John struck out. Edwards was safe when Kersey fumbled. Runyan and Lucas singled, then Harper ended it by striking out. This was good for three runs.

The Athletics were harmless until the ninth, when their rally was out short after Harper, first up, doubled. Lynch fled to left, Massie singled scoring Harper. Hornberger popped to Evans, and Evans found three holes in Jones' bat for the final out for the afternoon.

The Bayliffs started in the first. Gallagher, first up, singled. N. Murrell cut loose with a three-bagger, and Gallagher crossed. Kiser walked, but the next three were easy outs.

In the second Evans opened up by striking out. Kersey received a free ticket. Conklin fled to right, then the heavy guns started again. Gallagher singled and stole second, and N. Murrell singled, scoring both runners.

In the fifth with one gone, N. Murrell was safe on an error. Kiser whiffed, but brother Dick sent him home from first with a long double.

The Bayliffs came to bat in the sixth with the score 4 to 1 and immediately proceeded to untie it. Bowermeister walked. Evans doubled, Kersey fled to right and Conklin drove in two with a nice single. Gallagher sacrificed him to second, then N. Murrell found a spot for another three bagger and drove in his fourth run of the afternoon. This was enough and Evans took care of the Athletics from then on. Each pitcher had ten strike outs, with Evans more effective with men on base, as the Bayliffs were outthirteen to nine.

In the third the Athletics got three and in the fourth two hits without scoring a run.

Next Sunday, August 19, Bowersville will play the Sabina All Stars. This team is the sabina All Stars, and is composed of semi-pro and college players of Clinton County. The Sabina lineup states Mercer, who tried out with Greenfield in the K. I. O. will pitch, and the experienced Craig will catch.

UNROMANTIC UNCLE SAM HAS SENT MISS SPAIN BACK HOME

Senorita Agueda Adorna (Miss Spain) and, inset, her chaperone, Senora Mila gra de Alba.

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch To The Gazette

NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 13.—Ah, seniors, your Uncle Sam is too businesslike, and, oh, so unromantic.

What does he know, that unromantic Uncle Sam, about the heart of a young Spanish girl? And what does he know about a girl's ambition for stage life, to dance the graceful steps of Spain beyond the footlights, to carve a great career for oneself?

Nothing, that at all and what is worse, he doesn't appear to give a hoot.

That's why the beautiful Senorita Agueda Adorna, pride of Spain and her chaperone, Senora Mila gra de Alba, were held at Algiers across New Orleans harbor, to be sent posthaste back to Spain as soon as Uncle Sam gets around to that, to him, unimportant business.

It seems that Senorita Adorna, as Miss Spain, came to America to participate in an international beauty pageant at Galveston, Tex.

Meets Cavalier

Came one night in a New Orleans hotel lobby when a handsome young man saw the beautiful 18-year-old senorita. He bowed as magnificently as only the men of the continent, my seniors, know how to bow. That bow won Agueda. She permitted him to speak.

Under the kindly eye of Senora de Alba, the pair saw each other often. They became friendly. The man, an American who had spent much time in Venezuela and spoke Spanish as well as one of the great Dons, fell in love.

Agueda liked him tremendously but failed to fall in love. He was a bit "too American." However, he awakened in her a desire to stay in America and try a stage career. She determined to become a great dancer and a great actress.

The days went by as Senorita Adorna made her rosy plans. Came a rude awakening. Immigration authorities decided the girl and her chaperone must go back to the old country.

As soon as the necessary papers were in hand, said Immigration Inspector I. H. Vincent, back would go the pair. Under the conditions of a visitor's passport, he explained, the girl could not accept employment she must enter as an immigrant to do so.

Neither was under visitor's bond and the Spanish consul here declined to accept the responsibility for their departure from this country before the expiration of their passports.

So they were sent to nearby Algiers to be held for deportation.

"I do not understand," Agueda told reporters in French. "Why your Uncle Sam should refuse to allow me to stay. I want very much to make a career for myself here. It is not a bit nice."

"Marry to my American friend? No, I won't do that. He doesn't smoke or dance or do anything. And I am Spanish. How could I be happy with a fellow like that? I want most of all—a career."

"However, all my plans are spoiled if I am not allowed to stay."

But Senorita Adorna hasn't given up the fight. She is determined to win a place in America, where she likes everyone but this fellow, Uncle Sam.

Poems that Live

TO CRITICS

When I was seventeen I heard From each censorious tongue, "I don't do that if I were you; You see you're rather young."

Now that I number forty years, I'm quite as often told Of this or that I shouldn't do Because I'm quite too old.

O carping world! If there's an age Where youth and manhood keep An equal poise, alas! I sleep Have passed it in my sleep.

Emerges From China

Chinese revolutions have a fascination for C. S. Hirsch, above, American adventurer and author. They both burst out laughing, and Ballard called her Miss James the rest of the evening.

An hour in the club, crowded to capacity and filled with smoke, gave Janet a headache. She tried to imagine what it must be like to spend hours every night in such an atmosphere like a lot of people did. They tried to dance and the floor was too crowded. But she realized what a marvelous dancer Ballard was, and wished they had a whole big floor all to themselves so they could dance and dance for hours.

He was compelled to hold her close and they were both sweetly conscious of each other. Janet closed her eyes and felt she had never been so happy before. Ballard wanted to crush her to him. He held her so closely, suddenly, that she looked up at him with surprise.

"Too crowded here," he released her and they went back to their table. "We'll get smashed."

Janet's heart sang. He was beginning to care for her a little. He wanted her. Why didn't he make love to her like any other man would, she wondered to herself. But she was glad, in a way, that he would not trust himself to kiss her. It showed how deeply he was beginning to feel. She made up her mind that she would play the indifferent little sister, wouldn't marry-the-best-man-on-earth game until he believed her. Janet was wise enough to see that sentiment would scare him away. She knew how he valued his freedom. All right, she would play up to it.

By one thirty Ballard had about enough of the club. His head felt heavy and his lungs as though all the air went out of them, but he hesitated to spoil Janet's evening. He was glad when she looked at him a little uncertainly and inquired:

"Don't you think it's time to go? I'm pretty tired."

He arose at once.

"Nothing would suit me better. We'll take a little drive and get this stale air out of our lungs. I can't stand this sort of hole long."

"Neither could I." She shook her head at the crowd that looked as though they were just about getting started. "This wouldn't exactly be the life for me every night."

"Did you have a good time?" he asked her, when they were on the street.

She squeezed his arm and laughed up into his face.

"Of course I did. How could I help it? My first night club party—and celebrating my success tonight with a great big, sweet, handsome boy like you."

READ THIS FIRST:

Janet Mary James, eighteen, sweet and clever and good, has an ambition to go on the stage because her mother, who died the night she was born, had been a famous opera star. Janet meets Dr. Ballard Riley, who is known as a woman hater. Ballard dates her up, and Janet gets a lot of fun out of having a date with him. Janet meets Sir Henry Martindale, a tatterly old gentleman, who becomes interested in her stage career. He takes Janet to meet most Goustein, famous musical revue producer. Mort has her sing and dance, and engages her for a number in his new show. Janet is attending rehearsals.

At the rehearsal she meets Corinne Malory, a tired little chorus girl, broke, who has gone hungry for several days. Janet takes her to lunch, and they become friends. Janet is anxiously waiting for her call to go on the stage at rehearsal.

Rodine Deslys, one of the show girls, takes a dislike to Janet, and they are bitter enemies. Rodine is particularly disagreeable on the opening night of the new show.

Ballard Riley sends Janet a box of flowers on the great night, and Rodine tries to get even.

After the show Ballard Riley takes Janet to a famous night club. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXIII

Ballard smiled to himself at her sparkling eyes and the color that came and went in her cheeks. She was like a little girl at her first party. How he loved seeing her that way. Tex greeted them with one of her famous back slaps, and sat them at a two-by-four table in the corner.

Janet stood out like a shining little jewel in the crowd of midnight revelers. Suddenly Ballard hoped that she would not enjoy herself. He hated the thought of her liking an atmosphere of that sort—and regretted that he had taken her. But someone else would take her, he consoled himself, and it was better that she should cut her night club tooth with him.

Six girls danced out in costumes that were startlingly close to nature. Janet shuddered at the thought of having to come right out among so many people dressed like that. She looked at Ballard and nodded.

"I suppose you'd think I was an old brute if I told you I'd die if I had to come out in a bunch like this sans clothes. It seems different on the stage, somehow."

"It is different," Ballard assured her, seriously.

"Well, it's had enough, anyway. I nearly died tonight when the curtain went up in my first draped number."

Ballard concealed a smile. He was glad she felt that way about it. But before he had a chance to comment something happened that made them the cynosure of all eyes.

Tex was beside their table, suddenly announcing, in her raucous voice:

"Behold, folks, the little girl who knocked 'em cold in the 'Farce of 1925' tonight—Janet Mary James. Come on now, folks, give this little girl a nice big hand."

Janet sent Ballard a wild, scared look, and he nodded encouragement. "Get up and give them a little bow, Janet." She turned crimson as Tex put her arm around her. The place went wild with applause, whistling, toys, grating, whistles and horns blew and favors were tossed in the air.

She was getting the applause of a celebrity. Ballard had never been quite so amused in his life—especially when Tex next introduced a famous motion picture star and her prince husband.

"There now, Janet," he called her attention to the honor. "You see you are more important than movie stars. They are held over till last—and you got the first introduction."

She had her bearings by this time, and smiled naturally, drawing herself up haughtily.

"Sir! You better treat me with proper dignity hereafter. And remember, I am no longer a child—but a famous woman."

They both burst out laughing, and Ballard called her Miss James the rest of the evening.

The Theater

Within a year 1,000 American theaters will be equipped with talking motion pictures, and within two years, 5,000 theaters will be showing them, according to the estimate of James R. Quirk, outstanding film authority.

Mr. Quirk, publisher of Photo Play Magazine, predicts that the newly developed mechanism which synchronizes sound and action on the screen will completely revolutionize the films by 1930.

Even now, he discloses, screen layers are being denied contacts until they make good in silent tests as well as screen tests, so sure are the producers of the future of talking movies. "The talking pictures will relegate to second place some of our most popular screen stars," he points out. "The accents of Greta Garbo, Pola Negri, Del Rio and Lupulez, for example, will be great handicaps in casting them and the English actors, with the definite accents will have a difficult time."

"Three Week-Ends" a screen original, written by Elinor Glyn, has been selected as Clara Bow's next assignment. "The Fleet's In!" has just been completed with Clara as star.

Nobody really "knows" Wallace Beery, character and comedian par excellence, they say in Hollywood. But here are a few details gleaned about his character and modestly submitted by his publicity agent: he has no personal vanity, he never rehearses a scene, he will not work on Sundays, he is a temperate man—does not drink and seldom smokes, and will take all sorts of risks in front of the camera. He is six feet two and weighs 235 pounds.

WHERE'S THE FIRE? CLIP OUT THIS LIST OF ALARM NUMBERS

Fire Chief William Hanifan is seeking to educate the public in the correct method to be followed in turning in an alarm and in reporting a fire in order that the fire department may locate the blaze with the least possible delay.

There are twenty-four actual fire alarm boxes stationed at the most important points in various parts of the city and thirty-two locations where imaginary boxes are designated, a total of fifty-six.

The fire alarm boxes connect directly with Police Headquarters, from where the information is relayed to the engine house. The person turning in an alarm should remain at the box until the fire apparatus arrives and then direct firemen to the blaze.

A slightly different process is used in telephoning in a fire. Either call 120 or tell the operator that you wish to report a fire. Implicit directions should be given as to the location of the fire. The person giving the alarm should also stand in the street and flag the trucks in order to save time.

The imaginary fire alarm boxes are to assist firemen in reaching the most familiar points as near the scene of the fire as possible. Following are the numbers and locations of the actual fire alarm boxes:

- 6—E. Main St. engine house.
- 13—Union and Galloway Sts.

Building the Fortresses of Health

Maybe it is hard for you to imagine the time when illness could be prolonged, and life endangered, because neither doctor or druggist could depend upon the strength of medicines. Fortunately that time is past. Today your doctor can prescribe medicines of known strength. Your druggist can fill his prescription with products of a definite potency. Today a great change, a fixed standard in medicines is available. The Affiliated Druggists follow this standard. Let them compound your prescriptions.

FOR

COUNTY

COUNTY
SURVEYOR

As a Life Long Resident Of Greene County,
A Graduate Of The Xenia Public Schools,
A Consistent Republican,

I Have Entered This Republican Primary

As a Candidate For The Office Of

COUNTY SURVEYOR

Owing to the work I have been doing in the interest of the Greene County Home-Coming it has been necessary to devote the greater part of my time in the erection of an Auditorium in Shawnee Park, so that the same may be completed for use during the Home-Coming festivities August 26th.

It has been a keen disappointment that I have been unable to meet and solicit the support of all the electorate of our county.

However---The Nomination

—OF—

HARRY A. SPARKS

For County Surveyor

will go well to insure the proper, efficient and legal use of all the public funds under his disposal, and also insure the funds to be used in the proper political or legal sub-districts of the county.

Signed,

Harry A. Sparks
